'Target Practice' Shot Victim Dies

Operation On Brain Is Failure

Thomas Allen Steer Jr, 16, 921 Summit Ave, Monessen, who was shot behind the right ear Sunday, died last night during a delicate brain operation at Mercy Hospital, Pittsburgh.

Doctors were attempting to remove a .22 caliber rifle slug that had moved from the ear to the brain when death came about 11 30 p m.

He had been in a coma and near death since the shooting which took place near Twilight about 3 30 p m last Sunday when the victim and four companions were engaged in "target practice" with 22 caliber rifles

The son of Mr. and Mrs Thomas Steer, the Monessen High School junior had been reported as "somewhat improving" yesterday morning. It was said he had improved to have the operation attempt to save his life His brain was badly damaged by the bullet

Mother at Bedside

His mother was at his bedside constantly.

Despite Steer's death, the state police, as of noon today, still have refused to release details of the shooting, stating that the case still is under investigation

They also refuse to say who shot the fatal bullet.

It was learned that Steer and two other youths had gone to a spot near the reservoir of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railway off Twilight Hollow for "target practice" There they met another youth and a girl

Reportedly, the youths started to "horse around" In the by-play that followed, a bullet pierced Steer's right ear.

It was said that the youth who did the shooting had intended to shoot over Steer's head. It could not be learned if the slug richocheted off a tree before it pierced Steer.

Investigation Continues

Sgt. Karl H Delbrook, in charge of the state police sub-station in Belle Vernon, said at noon today that he was attempting to contact juvenile authorities in Washington County, where the shooting took place, in an effort "to learn what they intend doing about the matter"

It is believed the shooting will be termed as "accidental"

Delbrook said a "number of things have to be investigated before police can make the details public." He said the shooting took place in Washington County, death occurred in Allegheny County and Steer and his companions, all from Monessen, reside in Westmoreland County.

Steer, officials at Monessen High School said today, was a student "who got along well with everyone."

Despite the tragic loss of her son, Mrs. Steer took the time to warn other persons, particularly youngsters, to be very careful when using firearms.

Besides his parents, the youth is survived by two sisters, Mrs Don (Betty Jean) Zenobi, R D., Charleroi, and Nancy Lee at home.

Friends will be received after 1 p m. tomorrow at the Edwin Melenyzer Funeral Home, 262 Donner Ave, Monessen, from where funeral services will be held at 1 30 p m. Monday. The Rev. Lloyd Erb, pastor of First Baptist Church, will officiate. Burial will be in Belle Vernon cemetery.

Claims Leader Tried to Get Him Out of Way

HARRISBURG (UP)—Clarence P Bower, Reading battery manufacturer and a member of the State Labor Relations Board, said Gov. George M Leader today threatened to fire him unless he accepted a state post which would prevent Bowers from participating in political activities

Bowers said the governor asked him to accept an appointment to the Unemployment Compensation Board of Review, a post which carries a salary of $11 000 annually, in contrast to the $8,500 he receives on the Labor Relations Board.

He charged that Leader wanted to place him in a position which would prevent Bowers from engaging in political activity in support of Lt Gov. Roy E Furman as a gubernatorial candidate next year.

The governor was not immediately available for comment

Members of the Unemployment Review Board are barred from engaging in politics under the Federal Hatch Act

Bowers, a one time candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, said the governor called him by telephone yesterday

"He asked me to resign from the Labor Relations Board and offered to appoint me to the Unemployment Compensation Board of Review." Bowers said "I said I did not want to make the switch because the Hatch Act would bar me from politics Then the governor said unless I resigned he would fire me tomorrow (Friday)."

Objections To Zoning Are Heard

Continued objections to a proposed new zoning ordinance by hill district business people livened a meeting of the Monessen Planning Commission last night

About 35 visitors attended the Commission meeting in the City Building, and nearly all of them had something to say concerning the ordinance before the hour-and-a half session was over.

Principal business before the Commission was revision of the proposed ordinance based on public hearings held earlier Members voted unanimously for 13 specific changes in the zoning provisions Many of them were minor changes in phrasing or definition

Among the important revisions, however, was the complete elimination of a controversial "removal schedule" under which nonconforming structures within specified zones would have to be removed within ten to 40 years, depending on the type of construction

Doubtful Legality

It was this passage which had prompted vigorous protest earlier, since many businesses now scattered through residential areas would have been subject to removal

The Commission eliminated the removal schedule after the City Solicitor advised that such a provision has not been tested in Pennsylvania courts and therefor has doubtful legality.

What kept the controversy alive last night was that the Commission has left in the ordinance a requirement that in the event of a fire which destroys more than 50 per cent of a non-conforming structure, it could not be rebuilt for the same use on the same site.

Most of the visitors who expressed themselves last night took the line that a fire would put them out of business and ruin them financially. In addition they felt that as long as the provision stands it will adversely affect the market for these properties since any purchaser would be under the same threat of loss.

The visitors listened patiently to long explanations from individual commission members concerning the purpose of the ordinance generally and the necessity for some of its specific provisions There was a lively and vocal response from the group, however, and Dr. Joseph Dudas, who was presiding as chairman of the commission, rapped frequently to keep the meeting in order.

Not All Popular

The Commission is determined, said Dr. Dudas, to come up with a plan for a better Monessen, since that is the task given it by Council and the state code Members of the Commission are aware, he continued, that some of its recommendations will not be popular with all citizens or all groups The final recommenda-

Democrats Say Ike's Plans On Missile Program Too Late

WASHINGTON (UP) — Democrats today hit President Eisenhower's plan to whip the U. S. missile program into a commanding position as too late. But Republicans said he is doing everything that should be done to meet Russia's space challenge.

There was virtually complete agreement over whether the President had picked the right man to take over command of the nation's scientific effort in Dr James R Killian, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology Killian has served previously on presidential defense advisory boards.

Former President Harry S Truman said Killian was "an excellent choice" for the job. But Truman said the abrupt scientific mobilization would not be necessary for, "with proper leadership, we would be well ahead of Russia today."

Other Comments

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B Johnson said "the basic issue is whether we can produce the weapons that are needed in the time that is remaining" The Texan, who has ordered a full-scale investigation of the missile program, said he was happy that Eisenhower had noted a necessity for "a high sense of urgency."

But he said he had hoped "the President would stress what we need to do as well as what we have done."

Adlai Stevenson said, "I'm not clear from his speech whether the President is satisfied with our military missile and scientific situation or not... but I'm happy that he is going to try and pool our scientific efforts with our allies. We need all the brains we have and can borrow."

President Says Overall Strength Of U. S. Greater

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower told the nation Thursday night he has named a "czar" to push U. S. missile development and other scientific programs "with the utmost possible speed."

Eisenhower said he had named Dr. James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to the newly-created post of special assistant to the President for science and technology. He said he expected Killian to mobilize "the full abilities of the scientists and engineers of our country."

In a "lay-the-facts-before-you" address on radio and television, the Chief Executive conceded "the Soviets are quite likely ahead in some missile and special areas, and are obviously ahead of us in satellite development."

But he said that "it is my conviction, supported by trusted scientific and military advisers that .. as of today the overall military strength of the Free World is distinctly greater than that of the Communist countries."

He then announced a five-point "program of action," topped by the naming of a special assistant on science and technology, to wipe out any "temporary" edge Russia may enjoy with its space satellites and rocket advances.

And, in a progress report on U S. developments, he officially confirmed that.

Solved Major Obstacle

—U S scientists have "solved" one of the major obstacles to perfecting an intercontinental ballistic missile — the problem of how to get the missile back to earth once it has soared into space without having it burn up from friction on re-entering the atmosphere.

—The Air Force Snark, a subsonic, jet-propelled pilotless bomber recently flew 5,000 miles—intercontinental distance — "and was accurately placed on target"

—The United States derived "most valuable information about outer space" in the recent Air Force firing of a rocket to between 2,000 and 4,000 miles over the Pacific.

Lists Other Steps

Eisenhower listed these other steps he has taken as part of his "program of action."

—Order that "any new missile or related program hereafter originated will, whenever practicable, be put under a single manager and administered without regard to the separate services."

—Said he would ask Congress "to remove legal barriers to the exchange of appropriate technological information with friendly countries"

As for the future, the President said there are two critical needs the nation must meet which he will discuss in another speech Nov. 13 at Oklahoma City

He listed these as "the failure of us in this country to give high enough priority to scientific education and to the place of science in our national life" and the necessity of "giving higher priority,

Defense Budget To Be Increased By Two Billion

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Styles Bridges (R-N H) said following a talk with President Eisenhower today that next year's defense budget may be increased by one to two billion dollars to meet the cost of the nation's "accelerated" missile - satellite program.

He said increased defense costs will "make chances of a tax cut more dubious."

Bridges, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee and a member of the armed services committee had a breakfast conference with the President.

Talking to reporters afterward, he held out hope that the overall 1959 budget may show "some decrease" despite higher defense costs.

He said the President told him that James R. Killian, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will take over his new duties as the government's scientific czar "immediately" He said Killian will have "full power and authority" to speed the missile-satellite program.

Based on his breakfast conference with the President, Bridges said the missile-satellite program is being "assigned very top priority now in the whole defense set-up."

He said Eisenhower during the conference went over "his plans to accelerate the satellite-missile program."

More Bus Service to Be Provided in City

The Westside Motor Transit Co today agreed to supply additional bus service between Monessen and Belle Vernon on Monday and Friday evenings.

The bus firm, a subsidiary of the Noble J. Dick Lines, approved four new round-trips on both Monday and Friday following a meeting yesterday with representatives of the Merchants Division of the Monessen Chamber of Commerce

Bus service in the evening was sharply curtailed two weeks ago when the state Highway Department blocked off Schoonmaker from 17th to 12th streets in order to widen and repave the avenue. In effect, this blocked off the city to traffic from the west

As a result, Westside was forced to rearrange its schedule Under the existing arrangements, the last bus leaves Monessen for Belle Vernon at 6:05 p m on evening. After that, the trip has to be made via Donora.

The new schedule, which goes into effect next Monday, will give commuters in the Belle Vernon-Fairhope area an opportunity to travel to Monessen and take advantage of evening store hours.

The revised schedule for Mondays and Fridays will have buses leaving Monessen for Belle Vernon at 6:05, 7:35, 8 35 and 9:15 p m. Each trip will be via Monessen Highway and will take about 20 minutes. At Belle Vernon, connections will be made for Fairhope and Charleroi.

The new trips on those two days will leave Belle Vernon at 6:55; 7.55 and 8.55. The last run will reach Monessen at 9:15 and will leave immediately for the return

Khrushchev Is Life of The Party Last Night

MOSCOW (UP) — Nikita S Khrushchev was the life of the party Thursday night.

The Soviet Communist Party leader sang a solo, danced a waltz with a middle aged woman, drank toasts to the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution and joined in a rendition of the Marseillaise.

But he gave no hints as to whether the Soviets are planning new scientific moves such as a rocket to the moon although newsmen and diplomats gathered around because of the sometimes startling revelations he has made at other parties.

Khrushchev's performance was the highlight of a gala party given by the Soviet government and Communisty Party for the heads of international Communism and about 3,000 guests in the Kremlin Grand Palace.

And if his conversation gave no indications of Russian scientific things to come, Thursday's anniversary day parade did. Even then there was nothing so dramatic as the launching of Sputniks I and II, the second with a still-living dog

Tension had built up as the West closely watched for another spectacular announcement of action to coincide with the celebrations Some experts went so far as to predict that Russia was planning a rocket to the moon to highlight the occasion

There was not even Russian confirmation that the huge rocket displayed in Red Square was an intercontinental ballistics missile though an informed American source said it was the deadly weapon.

(In London scientists noted that the rocket was a one-stage rocket and that if it was an ICBM it would have to be powered by the new super fuels announced during the past week by Russian scientists)

Although the top Soviet leaders were there and the reception was officially opened by President Klimenti Voroshilov, there was no doubt who was the real host—Nikita Khrushchev.

Suspect Held In Shooting of Two Patrolmen

GEORGETOWN, Ky. (UP) — Police today sought to identify a suspect arrested Thursday night as the gunman who killed two highway patrolmen and led authorities on a three-day manhunt through several states.

Police arrested Kenneth Combs, 24, of Cincinnati here Thursday night on a vagrancy charge. They said he answered the description of the killer wanted in the fatal shooting Tuesday of two North Carolina highway patrolmen.

Combs, unarmed when arrested at a motel here, denied any knowledge of the slayings.

The slender, dark complexioned man said he started from Florida and left Chattanooga, Tenn., the day before Thursday, hitchhiking a ride in an Oldsmobile to a small Kentucky town. He said he then caught another ride to Lexington.

Police said Robert Lee Terry, Negro lay preacher who had hitchhiked a ride with the fugitive and was with him when he shot to death the first patrolman, was due here today.

Terry, who fled when the killer began firing, has been held as a material witness by the North Carolina Highway Patrol.

Thursday, authorities followed a trail of stolen, wrecked cars to Lancaster near here in search of the gunman.

Maj. Charles B. Crutchfield of the Kentucky State Police said roving roadblocks were set up between here and Paint Lick, Ky., where the killer wrecked the last car, a 1957 Plymouth stolen here.

Buildings Checked

Five carloads of state troopers and several county deputies were deployed in the rolling wooded countryside with orders to check all farmhouses and buildings.

Blood in one of the stolen cars led authorities to believe the gunman was hurt when he wrecked a car stolen at Chattanooga, Tenn.

The killer is described as of swarthy complexion, about 25 years old, weighing 145 to 150 pounds and wearing a brown suit or tie.

Newport, Ky., police said a man answering to that description had stolen a car there late Thursday, a 1951 bronze Ford coupe.

Terry said the fugitive shot the first patrolman when he stopped the car for speeding near Rockingham, N.C. Terry fled when the gunman fired.

The second officer was killed when he attempted to halt the gunman a few hours later.

The chase for the gunman began last Sunday night when a 1957 Oldsmobile was stolen from an auto agency at Bradford, Pa.

Monday night, license tags were taken from a car at Carrolltown, Pa., and early Tuesday morning seven pistols, three rifles and ammunition were stolen from a hardware store at Barnesboro, Pa. The dealer's tags were later found at Charleston, W. Va.

Police found the Oldsmobile on a Chattanooga street. In it were four pistols, two revolvers, a rifle and 2 000 rounds of ammunition.

WOMAN'S EDITOR CHATS WITH LIBERACE — Mrs. John Hurley, The Daily Independent's Woman's Editor, had a long talk with famed pianist Liberace yesterday. The musician held a press conference in Pittsburgh as a prelude to his nine-day appearance at nearby Twin Coaches. Here Liberace is presenting Mrs. Hurley with an autographed record album.

Liberace Legend Just Part of The Game, Famed Pianist Says

By MRS. JOHN HURLEY

It couldn't happen anywhere but here.

In 1943, a young man, Walter Liberace, played the piano in the Terrace room of the Hotel William Penn in Pittsburgh.

Yesterday afternoon the same man met with about 50 representatives from press, radio and television to discuss his nine-day appearance at nearby Twin Coaches.

He also disclosed that he is planning a trip around the world as soon as his personal appearance tour is completed and that he will be in Brussels, Belgium, to open the next World's Fair.

Using only his last name, Liberace is known to millions for his showmanship and piano artistry. It was necessary to arrange a press luncheon for him in that same Terrace room in order that he could meet and talk to all the people he wished to prior to his nine-day stay at Twin Coaches.

From the moment he entered the room it was one surprise after the other. With the exception of the wavy hair, which is liberally sprinkled with gray, and the trademark smile, there was little similarity between this man and the famous television star. Much of the legend built about him is strictly showmanship, and he readily admits it.

Describes 'Costumes'

When questioned about the clothes he was wearing he described them as a black suit with a white sweater vest (to keep warm). He then went on to say his street clothes were totally different from the nine changes of clothing he will wear in his Twin Coaches appearance. These he simply described as his "costumes", used only on the stage and deductible from his income tax.

He stated that his show is one hour and 45 minutes long, and the change in apparel is always appealing to the audience.

In describing his show he said there were 17 in his company, which is a slight difference in his presentation of 14 years ago. At that time he played the piano against a background of recorded music, since most places he played did not have a large enough orchestra to provide the proper effect.

Accompanying Liberace was his sister, Mrs. Angie Farrell, who is traveling with him at present. She too has the famous Liberace smile, and uses it just about as much as her brother.

George Leaves Act

Before the mass interview began Liberace announced that he would try to answer all questions and this he did very frankly.

He does not plan an immediate return to television on his own program, nor does he plan any immediate recordings. He stated quite simply that enough of anything is enough — and people had just seen and heard too much of him at one time. He will play clubs, concerts and many places abroad before returning seriously to TV.

When asked about his brother George, he stated that George had to leave the act to look after the many interests the family has now acquired as the Liberace Enterprises. These include music and dance studios, small businesses and even a frozen food company for the sale of imported Italian food.

The pianist exhibited a liberal sense of humor and graciousness in greeting the guests, and joined Rose and Tony Calderone, who had the party, in extending congratulations to Monessen Mayor Hugo Parente and his wife, who were observing their 25th wedding anniversary. They and Pittsburgh Mayor David L. Lawrence were among the many officials on hand to welcome the celebrity.

Directs Own Shows

A newsman hinted that he had heard that Liberace's parents wanted him to be an undertaker when he grew up. The star answered by saying that in depression days, there were two members of his family, an uncle and cousin, who did not suffer too much. One was an undertaker, and the other a doctor, so his mother felt either one would be a satisfying profession.

In his serious discussion of music Liberace announced that he produced and directed his own shows now and was responsible for many of the musical numbers, which he prepared for orchestration.

He stated that he is not ambitious to play with the symphony, but always includes some of this type of music in his shows. He follows it with one of his popular selections in order that the audience does not get bored. Musically he seemed a little partial to "September Song."

All in all both men and women present were favorabl impressed as were the teenagers striving to get a look at the star from the halls and doorways.

Tonight he will don his sequined tuxedo with the 12 karat diamond buttons, step to the center of the Twin Coaches stage to the large concert grand piano where stands the symbolic candelabra — he will flash the smile, twinkle his blue eyes and be all "Showman."

Acting City Engineer Richard Bolan said yesterday there is a possibility at least one lane of Schoonmaker Ave. will be opened into the city by Christmas. This will depend a great deal on the weather in the next few weeks, Bolan added.

both public and private, to basic research."

Working On 38 Types

In reporting on U.S. missile progress, the President said the United States now has 38 different types either in operation or under development — "weapons adapted to every kind of distance, launching and use."

He said work on long range ballistic missiles "got into high gear more than two years ago" and "we have since been spending a billion dollars a year on this item alone."

He noted that "one difficult obstacle" to the successful firing of ballistic missiles was the problem of bringing them down on target at supersonic speeds and yet keep them from burning up like a meteor in the earth's atmosphere.

"Our scientists and engineers have solved that problem," he said. "This object here in my office is an experimental missile — a nose cone. It has been hundreds of miles to outer space and back. Here it is, completely intact."

Reveals Nose Cone

He then pointed it out to his television audience. The nose cone, sitting on a red velvet-covered dolly to the President's left, was 32 inches high with a base diameter of 20 inches. It tapered to a rounded off 7½-inch diamaier at the top.

He said scientists had assured him "that we are well ahead of the Soviets in the nuclear field, both in quantity and quality" and "we intend to stay ahead."

"In numbers our stock of nuclear weapons is so large and so rapidly growing that we are able to disperse it to positions assuring its instant availability against attack, and still keep strong reserves."

The President also made these points:

—The Navy has "atomic submarines" and "in both oceans" and possesses an atomic depth bomb and work has started on an atomic powered aircraft carrier.

—"Our ballistic test missiles have had successful flights to as much as 3,500 miles. An intercontinental missile is required, and we have some of them in advance state of development."

—"But, because of our many forward positions, for us an intermediate range missile (1,500 miles) is for some purposes as good as an intercontinental one."

We Heard It— ABOUT the VALLEY

(By The Independent News Staff)

Swears It's True

At Monongahela Valley Country Club more than a month ago, a prominent district business man confided to a few friends that he had sighted a strange "space ship" the night before.

Pledging his listeners to secrecy, the speaker described the craft as "cigar-shaped with a light at either end." He said the space ship was humming like an automobile motor.

According to the business man, he watched the object, which was hovering over his home near Monongahela, for more than ten minutes. He called several neighbors, who joined in watching the strange craft.

Suddenly, the ship disappeared with amazing speed.

The incident was reported to the Greater Pittsburgh Airport.

However the business man was in no mood to have his experience publicized.

"Nobody will believe me," he explained. "And I can't afford to be made out a fool."

Waves Were High

Throughout the recent campaign Judge David H. Weiss of Monessen, especially when addressing nationalistic groups, told how as a young immigrant boy he had come to America by boat across the Atlantic.

A loyal Democrat worker who heard this speech several times, was heard to say at one of the closing rallies:

"If I have to cross the ocean on that boat with Dave once more, I think I'll get seasick."

It Never Fails

It never fails to happen A local Penn State grad anxious to see the annual Pitt-Penn State football game at Pitt Stadium Nov 23rd sent in for four tickets several weeks ago and asked for good seats.

You can guess what happened.

When the tickets came, he got the four seats alright, two in one section and two in another

It wasn't until several weeks had gone by, several telephone calls and letters that all was settled. The four seats are together finally.

A Small World

During his recent trip to Mexico City, Louis Kichinko of the New Grand Hotel, had occasion to run into a restaurant waiter who neither spoke. nor understood English.

"I was about to give up," said Kichinko, "when another customer noticed my plight and offered to serve as an interpreter."

Kichinko invited the man to join him at lunch. They struck up a conversation and discovered a mutual interest.

"This man, whose name was Lorenzio Cardenas, lived in Monessen in 1921," said Kichinko.

Concluded Lou:

"It seems you just can't get away from the city no matter where you travel."

Held in Suspense

West Newton politicians were held in suspense on Wednesday morning.

The race for local offices was extremely close and one of the election boards didn't finish tabulating votes until 7 a.m., eleven hours after the polls had closed!

Calling 'em Close

Lewis S. Warren, Republican candidate for Monongahela City Council, polled just one more vote. than his. Democratic opponent William Pellgrini in Tuesday's election, according to unofficial returns.

However Warren is. pretty certain that the offical count will give him at least one more vote.

Reason: His son is in the service and he has mailed in a military ballot which reportedly contains a nod for dad.

Does it Sound True?

Economy note:

A Lynnwood resident made a trip to Baltimore last Saturday to witness a professional football game.

Also on the trip itinerary were a shopping and sight-seeing tour, a round trip on the toll highway, and three meals.

The entire cost of the trip, including tickets, amounted to a grand total of $1.70.

How?

That's a secret, but at that price who cares about "the good old days" before inflation.

Veteran Voter

Mrs. E.J. Corwin, 622 Speer St., North Belle Vernon, was among those who voted in Tuesday's election.

She's 90 years of age.

Legal Questions Halt Altoona Operation of Transportation Service

HARRISBURG (UP) — The question of whether the city of Altoona is legally empowered to operate a transportation service was seen today as the major stumbling block to the transfer of the ailing Altoona & Logan Valley Railway Co. to the city.

The question was raised Thursday at a meeting between city officials and members of the Public Utility Commission staff, and Fred C. Worden, of Des Moines, Ia., who is planning to purchase the company for lease to the city.

Worden told commission officials that operation of the line as a private enterprise is "out of the question," and that city leasing is the only basis on which the transfer can be made.

"As a private enterprise, there is no justification for an investment (in the firm) at all," Worden said. "We must have a direct subsidy in one form or another."

Worden said that as a municipal operation, the line would be exempt not only from state taxes and fees but federal income and excise taxes, a major operating expense.

Worden set forth his proposal for the creation of a city transportation authority to lease the physical property and assets of the firm from Worden's corporation, with the understanding that the equipment would then be sublet by the authority to the city The city would either operate the line itself or hire an operator.

The proposed city operation would be the first in Pennsylvania, according to PUC Transportation Director Guy R. Johnson, and many of the legal questions involved have never before been raised

Cites Laws In Case

Johnson pointed out that although both Philadelphia and Pittsburgh have been empowered by statute to operate transportation services, third-class cities, such as Altoona, have not been specifically granted that right

In the informal conference, Altoona City Solicitor Charles A. McAleer suggested that the city might undertake the venture under a broad interpretation of its police powers for the general welfare of its citizens.

Another legal problem raised was the matter of conducting the line beyond city limits. Though the city may operate within its city limits, may it operate beyond them?

The group was generally agreed that this problem might be met—provided the city's right to operate within its boundaries is established—by turning over to the city only that part of the buslines operated within the city.

Worden's counsel, Bernard Jubelirer, Altoona, said about $500,000 is involved in the proposed transfer. He predicted that the transfer may be completed in three to six months, "provided all goes well."

Also present at the meeting were Altoona Mayor Robert W. Anthony and John A. Matthews, representing A&LV.

The Public Utility Commission must authorize the liquidation of the firm, and the purchase of its assets, the creation of the city transportation authority, and the transfer of the busline franchises before the transaction can be closed.

The firm announced its intention to cease service last March 31 after 64 years due to continued operating losses which "make it impossible to stay in business," but has continued operation under a PUC order.

Culler's Drug Store Sale Is Now Official

The operation of Culler's Drug Store, 412 Broad Ave., Belle Vernon, has been taken over by Max Sherman, pharmacist, and Vincent (Bud) Vizza, businessman, both of Belle Vernon.

Although they have been operating the store since Oct. 1, the new owners officially took charge yesterday when final papers were signed.

They purchased only the drug store from Mrs. Constance Culler, wife of the late owner, Mylo Culler. They did not purchase the building housing the store, it was said.

Strictly a prescription drug store during the Culler ownership, the new owners said today they intend to continue filling prescriptions as their main item of business.

However, they announced they will install a modern soda fountain and beauty supplies counters.

No purchase price was disclosed.

Archbishop Antony Bashir

Metropolitan to Visit Monessen Syrian Church

Metropolitan Antony Bashir, Archbishop of the Syrian Antiochian Orthodox Archdiocese of New York of North America, will visit Monessen on Sunday.

His Eminence will be in the city to officiate the Divine Liturgy at St. Michael's Syrian Orthodox Church. The ceremony will begin at 10:30 a. m.

Metropolitan Bashir will also be the guest speaker at a banquet which will be held in the Russian Hall at 211 Schoonmaker Ave., beginning at 2 p m.

The visit of the highest-ranking member of the Syrian Orthodox hierarchy in North America will feature the annual parish celebration in observance of the Feast of St. Michael.

Rev. John Koury, pastor at St. Michael's, will assist in the religious service, which will be read in English, Arabic and Greek.

An interesting program has been arranged for the banquet, which will be followed by a social hour.

While here, Metropolitan Bashir will ordain six youths from the parish as altar boys.

Student Council Plans Activities

The current magazine sale being conducted by the Student Council of Monessen High School was discussed at a meeting held on Wednesday.

The sale is not progressing as well as expected, so extra effort will be made to secure new subscriptions and renewals.

Plans were made to sponsor a moving picture on April 2 and a Variety Show on Jan. 16. Students of most of the valley schools will be asked to participate in the latter.

VFW Post 1190 to Visit Hospital

A visit to the Aspinwall Veterans Hospital was planned by members of the Allison-Lescanac Post 1190, Veterans of Foreign Wars last night.

No definite date has been set, but tentative plans call for members of the Post and its Auxiliary to visit the veterans hospital Tuesday, Nov. 26 at 7 p.m.

The hospitalized veterans will be treated to cigarets and toilet articles by Post and Auxiliary members.

Plans were made to take part in the annual Monongahela Valley Veterans Day observance to be held this year in California.

Post members will participate, along with the Post's ambulance and jeep and caisson burial units in the big military parade which is slated to get underway at 4 p.m.

Prior to the Valley observance, which is held annually in one of six valley communities, members of Post 1190, along with other members of veterans posts in the City, will take part in a short ceremony at the Sixth St. Park war memorial at 11 a.m.

Uniformed members are asked to report at the Post home at 10 a.m. and parade to the Sixth St. park at 10:30. A wreath will be placed at the memorial and a short speaking program will feature the observance.

On Sunday at 6 p.m. members of Post 1190 will take part in a newly-instituted ceremony here, that of flag burning, at the Tank Memorial site in City Park.

There, Post 1190 members, along with representatives of the Thomas McKee Post 28, American Legion, will burn flags that were placed on veterans graves last Memorial Day.

Federal regulations require American flags that are tattered and torn be burned in properly-conducted ceremonies.

The flags will be collected by members of both posts Saturday afternoon.

Two new members were inducted into the Post, Richard Orris and Marvin Clifford Burdette.

A membership report for 1958 was given. Other reports were made by Commander John Hurrianko, Senior Vice Commander Walter Kwolek, Quartermaster Richard Pustelak, Chaplain Paul Komar and Junior Vice Commander Socrates Loulis.

Eyes of the World On Moscow

THE 40TH anniversary of the famous "October Revolution" in Russia finds the Communists in Moscow the center of world attention.

This is true partly because of the spectacular experiments wihch Russian scientists are conducting in outer space and which the Communist propagandists are trying to exploit as a demonstration of the superiority of their system.

But attention is focused on Moscow mainly because the world is not sure what the Communist leaders may do with the power which they undoubtedly are accumulating.

Neither Marx nor Lenin would find in Russia today the perfect socialist state which they thought they had conceived, Marx in his mind and Lenin at the barricades of the revolt against the czar. Their beloved "proletariat" exists only in the old slogans which the Soviet leaders still mouth but which have lost any practical meaning they ever had.

Russia is ruled today by a dictatorship as brutal and anti-social as the czar ever was The average Russian has no more freedom, and very little more personal comfort, than he ever had. Once exploited by the royal minions, he is now exploited by what Milovan Djilas, the dissident Yugoslav Communist, calls "the new class," the Communist bureaucracy.

* * *

THE DIFFERENCE, so far as the rest of the world is concerned, between the Russia of the czars and the Russia of 'the new class," is that the latter is a first-rate industrial and military power. Whenever it chooses, the "new class" can turn the world into a furnace with no assurance that man could survive, much less preserve the dignity of his soul.

The danger we face, then, has little to do with the "October Revolution" and the socio-political theories which inspired the events of 40 years ago in Petrograd. Democracy could coexist with such theories in a peaceful world if they were only theories.

The real danger is a stark reality — the existence of mighty industrial and military capacity in Russia under the control of a group of ruthless men who have shown no desire for a world order based on law and justice.

A Closer Look

ANY CLOSE ANALYSIS of last Tuesday's election returns in Westmoreland County will show that political sentiment throughout the county is not nearly as lop-sided as either the registration figures or the election results make it appear.

When it is pointed out that the Democrats have a registration majority of 51,000 and that this is better than two-to-one, the first impulse is to assume that opposition is hopeless. And when the returns come in and another whole slate of Democratic candidates is elected, the assumption seems to be confirmed.

But one who takes the trouble to examine the returns city by city, borough by borough and township by township is struck by the fact that only in a very few localities is the political balance really lop-sided. Such an analysis which appeared in our news columns yesterday showed that, in the important contest for three common pleas judgeships, there was a real battle almost everywhere except in Monessen, Rostraver Twp., Arnold and Jeannette. The only serious lop-sidedness in any of the larger communities occurred in these four places.

We cannot be proud of the fact that Monessen is the most lop-sided of all. For this can only mean that, more than in any other city of this large county, the voters of Monessen close their minds to the qualifications of individual candidates and the issues of particular elections and vote blindly for a party label.

It is the Republicans, of course, who are mainly at fault in this, not the Democrats. By failing to organize themselves and develop competent leadership, the Republicans make sacrificial lambs even of highly qualified candidates And they also make a courthouse political machine appear to be far stronger than it actually is in most of the communities of the county.

Worth Studying

THREE of Pennsylvania's 47 third class cities voted last Tuesday to establish charter commissions to study their form of government and make recommendations for possible changes. A law passed by the last legislature gives third class cities a choice of three forms — the present commission form, the so-called "strong mayor" form and the council-manager form.

In Johnstown the vote was 11 to 1 to make the study. In Butler and Pottsville it was 3 to 1.

It seems to us that Monessen might benefit from such a study by a group of representative citizens chosen by the people. We hope a movement in this direction can be organized and the matter presented to the voters here at an early election.

The establishment of charter commissions, of course, does not bind the cities to change their form of government. The actual change would also be voted upon by the people.

Merry-Go-Round—

Service Row Flares Before Senate Group

(Editor's Note: While Drew Pearson is traveling in the far west, the following column is written by his assistant, Jack Anderson.)

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — The Army-Air Force feud over guided missiles flared up sharply during the closed-door briefing which Pentagon officials gave Sens. Russell (Ga.), Jonnson (Texas), Democrats, and Bridges (N.H.), Republican.

Richard Horner, Air Force assistant secretary in charge of research, was describing the Air Force's anti-missile missile, the Wizard He explained that this was part of the Air Force's air defense mission Whereupon Dr. William H. Martin, Army research director, leaped to his feet and shouted 'I would like to dispute that'"

Martin started to protest, but Secretary of Defense Neil McElroy cut him off 'This is neither the time nor the place for an inter-service wrangle," said the new Secretary of Defense gruffly.

Dr. Martin meekly took his seat, and the Air Force spokesman continued briefing the senators.

Earlier, Lyndon Johnson had compared the Sputnik launching with his heart attack Lyndon told the closed-door group. My doctor told me if I hadn't had this warning and done something about it I would have had a much more serious attack later'

He said that the Sputnik should alert the nation in the same way that his heart attack alerted him It was better to have a warning, he said, so long as it wasn't fatal

Each service was allotted one hour to brief the senators However, the Army spent two and a half hours and made powerful claims for jurisdiction over ballistic missiles.

Battled for Army

Sen Russell sided with the Army. At one point, he bluntly asked the Air Force why it was in the ballistics business, which he considered the Army's field

"I understand all the Jupiters have been successful and only part of the Thors have been successful." Russell declared at one point He demanded to know why the Defense Department had been "holding back" the Jupiter.

The other two senators did not take sides in the inter-service missile feud, but asked broad questions.

The Navy, for its part told the senators it was dissatisfied with the Vanguard program, had never liked it, and had been forced into it.

The Air Force claimed all its missile projects were on schedule. Regarding the Thor, it claimed all the failures had been purely mechanical and that nothing basically wrong had been discovered. On the other hand, some of the Jupiter's failures had been caused by basic malfunctions, the Air Force claimed. The Air Force also argued that its Thor was a production - line model, whereas the Jupiter was hand-built.

Undersecretary of Defense Quarles did most of the speaking for the Defense Department regarding the Sputnik He made no attempt to belittle the Soviet achievement Sputnik, he said, was launched from a point east of the Caspian Sea at a 65-degree angle. This required far more power, he told the senators, than we would use to launch our Sputnik at Cape Canaveral at a 35-degree angle.

The meeting adjourned at 6 p. m to permit Secretary of Defense McElroy, Undersecretary Quarles, and Gen. Nate Twining to attend a White House dinner. As a result, the Air Force, last on the briefing list, had little time to present its side of the picture.

Electronic Spy

It's impossible to exaggerate the alarm felt in the Pentagon regarding Russia's latest Sputnik.

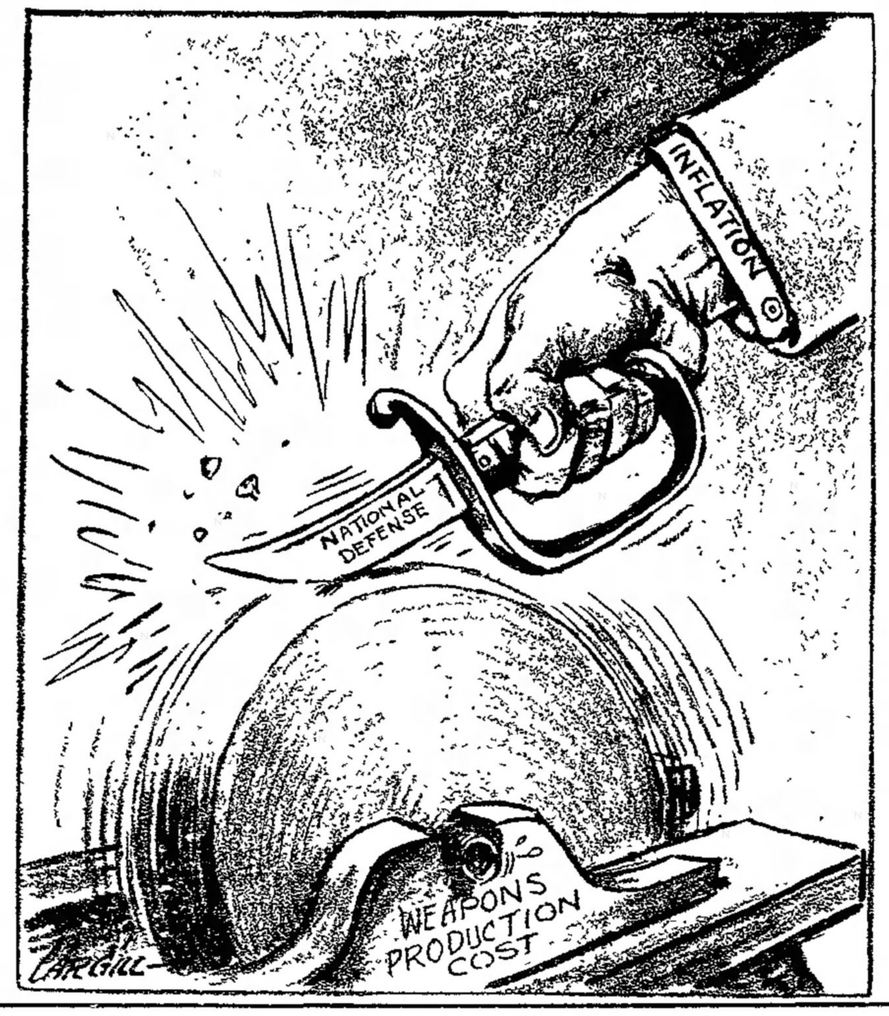
The alarm is based on the fact that Sputnik II is of such size that it could become an electronic spy on every military installation in the United States.

The dog - carrying Sputnik is probably peaceful enough But the next could be equipped with instruments able to locate all U. S defense installations and spy on our military movements Sputnik can communicate its findings every four hours by secret code to Moscow. It could report on what it sees in the United States, in NATO, or anyplace else in the world.

Our scientists also figure that Sputnik might even locate our secret stockpile of atomic bombs. If so, Russia would have the most priceless secret in the entire United States and would be able to strike at this stockpile first in case of war. Even if we moved the stockpile from place to place, Sputnik's electronic brain would be able to spot the change.

Mean annual temperature on the island of Massawa in the Red sea is about 86 degrees Fahrenheit.

Grinding It Down



Today and Tomorrow—

Mr. Eisenhower's Speeches

By WALTER LIPPMANN

In speaking to the country the President is bound to be very conscious of the fact that the times have changed Always, since he was first nominated for President, even during the pause in 1954, the general mood of the country has been bullish He himself has been the symbol and the carrier of a general confidence that as the country was growing and expanding all things were bound to come out right

Mr. Lippmann

While this was the mood of the country, he himself, as compared with any other President one can remember, was peculiarly and uniquely invulnerable He received the credit for all that went well and was never held personally accountable for what went wrong

That mood has passed. The President himself is very much aware of this fact, and that is why he is making a series of speeches. He finds it necessary "to stimulate the faith and confidence" of the American people in their defenses, their foreign policy, and their economy.

Much Bad News

In order to stimulate the faith and confidence of the people, which he feels is wanting, he will have to convince the people that he is addressing himself lucidly, resolutely, and with perseverance to the things which have disturbed faith and confidence.

What are they? There has been a lot of bad news — bad news about the Sputniks and ballistic missiles, about Little Rock, about the Middle East, about NATO, about the American educational system, and about the state of business and employment. Why, we must ask ourselves, are so many things going wrong for us in so many different ways?

My own notion is one which I cannot prove in a short space and perhaps could not prove at all It is that the common factor in these diverse and many troubles is to be found in the disparity between the official and the popular promises, expectations, policies and commitments on the one hand, and on the other, the resources and the efforts which we as a people have been able or willing to expend upon them.

Budget Problem

There is, for example the budget for defense and foreign aid It is big, as compared with what the American taxpayers have been allowed by their leaders to think they ought to pay But it is quite insufficient to do all the things that the taxpayers have been taught to think that the country ought to do We have set out to win the race of armaments in the big new weapons, and at the same time to maintain a big military establishment of conventional weapons, we have promised to underwrite a military alliance which runs around the world from Japan to Norway

Surely, the reason that the Soviet Union is ahead of us in the missiles is, first, that her efforts have been concentrated while ours have been dispersed, and second, that the Soviet Union has put not only defense but science and public education above a high standard of private consumption.

We have promised to do much more than we have asked our people to pay for Mr Dulles has been very tough when he talks to the Russians But Mr Eisenhower has been very soft when he talks to the Congress about appropriations

There is a great disparity between what has been promised and what has been provided. Because of it crises are breaking out in our defense establishment, in our alliances, and at home in such critical matters as education

These crises are disturbing the faith and confidence which the President hopes to restore. Whether he is to succeed will depend, so I venture to think, on whether after a reappraisal of his policies and his promises, he will take his stand firmly on the principle that the time has come to tell the people, as they have not been told for many long years that they must put the public need ahead of their private profit and their private comfort

The Woman's View—

New-style Actress

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—A new style Italian actress is in our midst This one announced that her chest is flat, but she thinks her acting will make her a hit with U.S. movie-goers anyway

"Maybe if I were a bigger girl, it would be helpful," said 24-year-old Marla Landi, who's no competition for Gina Lollobrigida or Sophia Loren in the measurements department

"But in Italy," she added, "the fans like Grace Kelly and Audrey Hepburn. This gives me some hope."

"Falsies? That isn't the same," said the long-legged Miss Landi, who also happens to be one of the world's highest paid fashion and photography models Sort of a continental answer to Suzy Parker, the red-haired U S model who's made a quick rise to fame in films.

Eyeing Hollywood

Miss Landi, who is dark-haired and dark-eyed, has just completed her third, and she said, best film role—the love interest in the British - made "Across the Bridge" Now, she said, she's eyeing Hollywood.

"But I have no ambitions to be pin-up type," she said. "I just want to work hard and act. I think you learn by doing. But I don't plan to give up modeling either"

Miss Landi is five feet seven inches, barefoot, weighs 116 pounds and measures 35, 22 and 35. At present, she confessed, her earnings as a model (she accepts nothing for less than $50 an hour) top her earnings as actress. "But it isn't fair to compare," she protested

Marla Landi was born Marla Scarafia, daughter of an engineer in Turin. "My father had high hopes for me and my sister," she said "He wanted us to be doctors I would never have made it ... My sister is the pianist of the family. She is practicing in Turin."

Model, Actress Easily

She became both model and actress easily, and almost simultaneously Her husband, who is with an aluminum firm, was transferred to London three years ago Miss Landi, who had a little modeling experience, posed for some fashion photographs for a milliner friend.

Her modeling career has been zooming ever since. She has been a cover girl on virtually every leading glossy magazine on the Continent, has done work for Vogue and Harper's Bazaar, has modeled for Italian designers Simonetta, Fontana, Faluani, and Pucci, and Morton, Cavanagh, Amies and Hartnell in London

Her new movie role was a stroke of luck For her, anyway, Actress Barbara Bates was forced to quit the picture because of illness and its star, Rod Steiger, suggested she take over.

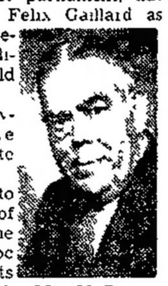
Gaillard, France's New Chief, Faces Hard Job

By CHARLES M. McCANN

France has a new cabinet after its 37-day political crisis, but it still has not got a stable government

The National Assembly the controlling house of parliament, has confirmed Felix Gaillard as France's 24th premier since its liberation in World War II



Mr. McCann

Gaillard received an impressive confirmation vote — 337 to 133

He managed to get the support of the Socialists, the conservative bloc of Independents and the left-of-center Popular Republicans as well as his own Radical Socialist Party All are represented in the new cabinet

Gaillard calls his cabinet a government of national unity Unfortunately, it is not really that The Socialists, the Independents and the Popular Republicans all cordially detest each other.

We Need Support

Hence the prospect is that Gaillard will have to perform a precarious balancing act to keep himself in office. Whether he can get the necessary support for legislation to solve France's serious political and economic problems is questionable

These problems include the future of Algeria, the keeping down of prices and wages, the budget deficit and social security benefits Any one of them could overthrow Gaillard

The crisis was ended largely because it had gone on so long Deputies were beginning to get angry letters from their constituents It was reported, apparently on good authority, that President Rene Coty was threatening to resign and, in doing so, to deliver a merciless blast against parliamentary irresponsibility. There was talk of bringing in Gen. Charles De Gaulle, the wartime Free France leader, to head a "strong man cabinet

At least Gaillard is young—he is 38 — and vigorous, and he brings fresh blood into the cabinet. Six months ago, when he was made finance minister in the cabinet of Maurice Bourges-Maunoury which fell on Sept 30, he was practically unknown

Algeria First Hurdle

Gaillard proposes first to put the Algerian problem before the National Assembly This includes getting the continuation of special governmental powers to deal with the revolt which is draining France of men and money It also includes trying to get approval of a law which would give Algeria a considerable measure of home rule but would leave it still, politically a part of France.

It was the Algerian issue which brought down the Bourges - Maunoury cabinet It might bring the downfall of Gaillard because the Socialists and the Conservatives disagree radically on a solution

Then Gaillard plans to ask for special powers to deal with the pressing problem of government finances and finally to propose some constitutional changes that would make government more stable

Paris dispatches are already somewhat pessimistic over Gaillard's prospects But it seems unlikely that any of the divergent groups supporting him will want to take responsibility for causing a new cabinet crisis soon

The Lighter Side—

Will Spaceships Have Annual Models, too?

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI)—Reflections of a man who has never seen a flying saucer purple cow or pie in the sky but is braced for anything

'Fairy' tales may come true—it could happen to you ' Frank Sinatra never could have dreamed how right the words were that opened his big hit song of a few years back.

But now if a satellite cow doesn't jump over the moon, soon, while little dogs laugh in their orbits and flying dishes run away with flying spoons — if such things don't happen, it seems, then there will be occasion for surprise

Herd 'Round World'

The joke that blossomed right after Sputnik II went aloft was that the Russians had plans to place a lot of small cows in a fleet of satellites circling the earth and call it 'the herd shot 'round the world"

This japc may someday turn out to hold as much truth as wordplay. Herds of cattle already have flown through the air, as matter of routine international commerce and without missing a cud chew on commercial airliners equipped as freight transports If you had tried to sell that one as may-come-true story to anybody in this world 50 years ago, you'd have been classified as a fairy-tale believer.

And for that matter, who would have thought, when the first horseless carriage putt - putted down the cobblestones in Great Grandpa's day that it would metamorphose by 1957 into a huge gleaming palace of metal and glass, with automatic transmission, air-cushion shock absorbers, 300-horsepower motor, and a little box on the dashboard through which you could hear Elvis Presley 1,000 miles away"

Convertible Saucers?

Never mind the auto Take Elvis Presley alone Chances are that if you had asked Great Grandpa to envision the likes of him, the old gentlemen would have had a conniption on the spot.

Anyhow, now that the spaceship is here, the auto soon should retire into history with the horse But the spaceship industry cannot escape the Detroit law—new models every year. Shut your eyes and see it now

Longer and lower satellites every year Get your new space platform, with the push - button gravity-overcomer Now! At your dealer's! Next year's spaceship—with photon propulsion! Now you can have your way, Dear, and never grow old — just travel at the speed of light in the new Comatose Mark XIV and time will stand still for you!

They'll probably even have convertible models, with tops that can be put up quickly for sudden showers—of meteors, that is

Midget All-Star Tilt Top Attraction

Don't miss that Midget League All-Stars vs. Jefferson, 1957 champions, game next Tuesday night . . . From the looks of that All-Star roster it is loaded with fine material and should give Coach Carmen DeMarco's Jefferson lads quite a battle . . . You can bet All-Star mentor Dale Simpson and assistants Bucky Lutes and Mooney Kachmarik will have some tricks up their sleeves to stop Eric Crabtree and Company . . . The local Lions Club will assist with the usual game chores Tuesday, an annual custom with the local club . . . A banner crowd at the all-star tilt would help the league over a tight financial squeeze this season when the flu bug hit attendance.

* * *

That was a nice gesture on the part of the local school moguls to include mothers of the gridders in the ceremonies at the Monessen-Duquesne game tonight . . . Original plans called for just Dad to be on hand but the plan had nothing to do with ignoring Mom, it was simply felt that this late in the year the weather would be too cold for the mothers, the flu bug disrupting the schedule and preventing scheduling the event earlier . . . But apparently the cold doesn't bother Mom nearly as much as the planners thought it would . . . So, she'll be on hand and deservedly so . . . Speaking of parents and their sons, a check of the Midget League scoring records revealed Johnny Popovich, son of Waynesburg College mentor John Popovich, scored four touchdowns for 24 points and not three touchdowns and an extra point in the local Midget scoring derby, moving him to third place.

Athletes Hit Political 'Jackpot'

Athletes and/or former valley coaches certainly hit the jackpot in the elections around the valley Tuesday . . . On the local scene John Harhai, former Monessen High baseball mentor, won a council post . . . In Brownsville, former outstanding middleweight boxer, Marion Klingensmith, won the burgess fight over long-time burgess Paul Thomas . . . Frank (Boom) Cantoni, former assistant football coach at Charleroi High, was elected burgess there, succeeding James McGuire and in Donora, Arnold Galiffa, former All-American football player, won a seat on council there . . . Quite a boost for those in the sports profession to have four men come out of the sports ranks to assume important posts of responsibility in their communities.

* * *

Ollie Payne, Charleroi's cracker-jack basketballer, Mel Freemen and Ken Fairfax, Uniontown High School's scoring aces, are mentioned in a national magazine's predictions of All-American High School cagers for the coming season . . . All three of them are outstanding hoopsters and sure-fire college material . . . Speaking of the court sport, a glance at valley rosters reveals this may be a season of some real "skyscrapers" as each team in the valley loop seems to have some taller than average players . . . Uniontown is an exception to this rule, however, as Coach Abe Everhart seems to always come up with just an average size quint but loaded with speed.

Coast Switch Makes Bucs Travel

Switching of Brooklyn and New York to California cost the Pittsburgh Pirates a close-to-home 1958 season opener . . . In previous years the Bucs had always opened with New York (at least since the Boston move to Milwaukee switched the schedules) but with New York in the Golden Gate State, the Bucs drew the Braves and must head for Milwaukee and then head back for the home opener with Cincinnati (returning after relinquishing the Pittsburgh opener post to Philadelphia the last few seasons) . . . To ease the travel problem, the two West Coast teams will naturally open against each other, 'Frisco Giants at Los Angeles Dodgers. (Sounds odd, huh?)

Archie Moore Seeking Another 'Heavy' Title

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) — Archie time you try to get a shot at somebody who holds the upper hand, you've got to pay through the nostrils. Now, if I may say so, the shoes are on other feet—but the remainder of his fight meaning ours."

So ancient Archie demanded, and received, a $100,000 guarantee when he recently risked his bauble against Tony Anthony. Archie, as you'll remember, kept his clout-ing collateral by fetching young Master Anthony a good night swat on his glass chin.

Anthony had earned the dubious pleasure of box-fighting Archie for the title by beating Chuck Spieser of Detroit. But come the latter part of January, Archie is going to give Spieser a shot at the silverware. This is not being done out of sheer benevolence.

Price Set High

The price, as for Anthony, is a $100,000 guarantee.

But you can't say that Archie's mouthpiece, Johnston, isn't helping to make it look like a solid go. "Spieser has a lot of ability," Charley insisted. "He didn't want to fight Anthony, wanting instead to merely wait his turn at Moore, and so he wasn't in shape for that bout. He should be formidable."

So formidable, in fact, that Johnston is looking toward the time when Patterson will be forced to invite Archie for a return engagement.

"Eddie Machen is the only one left for Patterson to box," Johnston explained. "Archie, of course, has knocked over just about all the other heavyweights around. After all, Moore has fought heavyweights 75 per cent of the time in the last 15 years. The light heavies didn't want anything to do with him. So eventually they'll have to come to us again."

If this seems to destroy Johnston's early pitch on the Spieser fight, you're right. But, as the man explained, you can't expect too much these days for a mere $100,000.

Bellmar Clips Dunbar, 27-13

Passing by QB Coates Paces Win

A much improved Bellmar High football team notched a 27-13 victory over Dunbar at Trotter last night, mainly on the brilliant passing of Ron Coates and the running of Reggie Kostelac.

Coates, 'Cane quarterback, hit end Percy Cranford, with pitches of 31 and 42 yards, both in the second quarter for a 13-0 half-time lead.

Bellmar jumped the count to 20-0 in the third quarter when Dennis Swiantek carried over from the two after a Bellmar drive, Milt Dupree bucking for the extra point. Dupree carried over later for a second point after touchdown and Swiantek adding one.

Kostelac scampered 10 yards for the final Hurricane tally and a 27-0 count.

Quick Touchdowns

Dunbar got two lightning-like scores with the count reading 27-0 when, after Martucci climaxed a Dunbar drive against 'Cane reserves by going over, Bellmar fumbled on the ensuing kickoff and the Mules drove to pay-dirt again with Bill Summell scoring the six-pointer.

Bap Manzini's Bellmar eleven closes its season at home next Thursday against North Union's once-beaten entry (by South Union which edged Bellmar 6-0) with a promise of a top-notch game.

After a slow start, the Hurricanes have looked better with each game played and unfortunately are reaching peak form just as the season ends.

Fairchance Nips West Newton in Thriller, 13-8

Fairchance came from behind to nip West Newton, 13-8, in a terrific game at West Newton's field last night.

Coach Andy Yartin's Hornets trailed at halftime 7-6 but nailed up a safety in the third quarter on a blocked punt by McCorkle of the Hornets who stopped a boot by Roscoe (Rock) Walton.

Following the ensuing kickoff the Chancers marched 80 yards for the winner TD with Walton going over around end.

Otto Leone, brilliant West Newton quarterback, had scored the lone Hornet score in the second period on a 25-yard run. Harold Jones scored the first Fairchance TD on an end around going 30 yards for a touchdown with Balok catching a pass for the extra point and the 7-6 half-time margin.

Last night's game concluded the season for the Hornets which saw them post a 4-4-1 record.

Vernon Juniors Post 32-7 Win in Finale

Coach Kenny Clark's Vernon Junior High eleven finished its season in a blaze of glory yesterday afternoon at Bellmar Stadium as they blasted South Huntingdon Juniors, 32-7, for the initial win of the 1957 campaign for the Vernons.

The Clarkmen has been hampered all season by injuries and the flu but finally got the entire team together yesterday for the first time.

Vernon Touchdowns

Vernon's touchdowns came on a recovered fumble by Cheatham, a 70-yard pass play which saw Ron Feher carry over, a 40-yard run by Feher, a 20-yard dash by Joe Lopez, and a 30-yard dash to touchdown land by Tom Johnston. Lopez and Johnston also ran extra points across the white marker.

South Huntingdon's lone TD came in the last quarter against the Vernon reserves when Billy Lux ran 10 yards to tally after a Huntingdon drive.

A 13-0 count was posted in the first quarter, jumped to 20-0 in the second, 26-0 in the third and the final 32-7 in the last frame.

Vernon thus concluded its '57 card with one victory but an impressive one which they saved for the finale for a sweet ending to a long season.

Rostraver Loses to Penn, 26-0

Penn Joint High School posted its first football victory of the season over the Rostraver High Leopards at Claridge last night by a 26-0 count, as Tony Istanish, Indian halfback led the way with two touchdowns.

Istanish scored his first marker in the second stanza when he went 10 yards around end following a Penn Joint drive and went over again in the last quarter from up close after another Indian march.

Penn Tallies

Harchelroad tallied the second Penn scored on a pass from Bartoletti in the third period, Bartoletti going over a short while later in a buck up the center. Fullback Karbo and Istanish ran the extra points across after the third and fourth scores for Coach Regis Kelley's lads.

Rostraver threatened seriously just before the half when they advanced the ball to the Penn two-yard line.

Pre-Game Show To Honor Parents Of MHS Gridders

Unless the rains change things, Monessen High School will host Duquesne High School's rugged Little Dukes at the Memorial Stadium here tonight.

In addition to the grid contest tonight, another attraction will be the annual "Parent's Night" festivities with the fathers and mothers of the gridders being honored prior to the game and at special fesivities in the Vocational School after the game.

Following the tribute to the parents the Greyhounds, somewhat battered after the Charleroi tilt last week, will engage the Dukes of John Donelli, who show a 4-4 record but have been beaten by only one touchdown in all four losses.

Were In AA Race

In fact the Dukes were in the AA running until a 7-0 loss to Johnstown.

The other losses were to Central Catholic, (6-0), North Catholic (20-12) Allquippa, (19 - 12). Victories were posted over Elizabeth-Forward (26-0) Turtle Creek (21-6), McKeesport (28-14) and Munhall (13-7).

Expected to pace the Donellimen tonight is Mike Daniels, a 170-pound holdover halfback, who tallied 12 touchdowns last season.

Other veterans back include tackle Dennis Gedman, a 195-pounder; Fred Brubaker, center; Marion Moore, a 180-pound end, all on the first string and reserves Daryll Richey, 190-pound tackle; Marion Salvatore Napolie and Calvin Stanley, husky guards, and Thomas Schultz, a 200-pound guard.

Other backfield starters in addition to Daniels are Jones at quarterback, Salvucci at the other half and Pitts at halfback.

Against this array, Coach Armand Niccolai of Monessen will send George Guibourdanche and Dennis O'Toole at ends, Vince Pascarella and Ed Allen at tackles, Bob Pauline and Terry Throop at guards, Lou Gigliotti at center with a backfield of Dan Barton at quarter, Ken Bronson, and Joe Karbowsky at halves with Carl Ratay at fullback.

Davey Moore 12-5 To Top Cotero; On TV Tonight

NEW YORK (UP) — Davey Moore is favored at 12-5 to beat Jose Cotero tonight in their featherweight contenders TV fight at the new Capitol Arena.

This 10-rounder between slambang Moore of Springfield, Ohio, and speedy Cotero of Los Angeles will be televised and broadcast nationally by NBC at 10 p.m. est.

Each is 21, aggressive and tough. Neither has been stopped.

A difference of opinion about their merits is reflected in the rating of the Ring Magazine and the National Boxing Association. The Ring ranks Cotero fifth and Moore sixth. But the NBA labs Moore number four and Cotero number seven.

Moore is favored because of his four straight victories this year. He won decisions over Gil Cadilli, Buddy McDonald, Isidro Martinez and Victor Quijano.

Meanwhile, in 1957, Cotero won two and lost two. He dropped decisions to Kid Anahuac and Ike Chestnut, but outpointed Larry Bataan and stopped Ricardo Moreno (7).

College Teams Look to Bowl Tilts In Important Contests Saturday

By UNITED PRESS

The University of Oklahoma, battle-scarred in its last two football games but still boasting a 46-game winning streak, tries to nail down an Orange Bowl berth Saturday against up-and-coming Missouri.

Oklahoma is an 18-point favorite despite Missouri's 5-1-1 overall record and 3-0 in Big Eight play. Missouri has lost only to Texas A&M, which displaced Oklahoma this week as the nation's No. 1 team in the United Press ratings. Since Bud Wilkinson became Oklahoma coach in 1947, the Sooners have played 63 conference games without a loss.

The other Orange Bowl team is sure to be Duke, unbeaten in the Atlantic Coast Conference but a six-point underdog this week to Navy.

Bowl Possibilities

Other possible bowl lineups:

Rose: Oregon vs. Ohio State or Michigan State. Oregon, 5-0 in the Pacific Coast Conference, is favored by 12 points over Washington. Ohio State, 4-0 in the Big Ten, is a seven-point choice over Purdue. Michigan State is picked by 14 points over Notre Dame, which shows signs of reeling under a murderous schedule.

Cotton: Texas A&M or Texas vs. Navy, Mississippi, Mississippi State, Tennessee or Georgia Tech. Favorites Saturday include Texas A&M by 12 points over Southern Methodist, Texas by 5 over Baylor, Mississippi by 11 over Louisiana State, Auburn (probably the best team in the South but a bowl ineligible) by 8 over Mississippi State and Tennessee by 7 over Georgia Tech. The most attractive Cotton Bowl paring would be Texas A&M-Navy.

Sugar and Gator: The same teams in the running for the Cotton Bowl are possibilities here, too, except that Navy won't play in the Sugar Bowl because of Louisiana segregation laws. The Gator Bowl also might be interested in West Virginia, a six-point favorite over Pittsburgh this week; Boston College, a four-point choice over Boston University; and Syracuse, a seven-point favorite over Holy Cross.

Regional TV Battles

Regionally televised games include Navy-Duke at Baltimore, Oregon - Washington at Portland, Ore., Purdue at Ohio State, South Carolina at North Carolina (North Carolina favored by one point), Arkansas at Rice (Arkansas favored by one point), and Nebraska at Iowa State (betting is "even money").

Miami of Florida is the choice over Florida State Friday night in the first major game of the weekend.

Other Saturday favorites:

Intersectional—Army over Utah, Penn State over Marquette, Houston over Mississippi Southern, Lehigh over Virginia Milltary, Detroit-Villanova is "even money."

East — Dartmouth over Cornell, Princeton over Harvard, Yale over Pennsylvania, Brown over Cornell, Colgate over Bucknell, Rutgers over Lafayette.

Midwest — Iowa over Minnesota, Michigan over Illinois, Wisconsin over Northwestern, Indiana over Cincinnati, Kansas over Kansas State, Oklahoma State over Wyoming, Drake over Wichita.

South — Vanderbilt over Kentucky, Florida over Georgia, Alabama over Tulane, Clemson over Maryland, Virginia Tech over Wake Forest, North Carolina State over William & Mary, George Washington over Richmond.

Southwest — Texas Tech over Tulsa, Arizona (Tempe State over Texas Western, Hardin-Simmons over Arizona.

Far West — Oregon State over California, UCLA over Washington State, Stanford over Southern California, Colorado over Colorado State U., Denver over Air Force Academy, Idaho over Utah State, College of Pacific over San Jose State.

Committee to Study Aid to Prep Students

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Walt Byers, executive secretary of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said today a committee will be created to clarify NCAA rules on aid to prep students.

Byers made the announcement after officials at Annapolis admitted they might be breaking current NCAA rules by allowing prep students to receive aid from Navy alumni.

Committee members for the new group, set up at the NCAA council meeting in October, have not yet been named.

Naval Academy officials have appeared before the NCAA council to discuss the problem, Byers said, but "it is not a case of the NCAA council attempting to find a solution for only one member institution."

At Annapolis, Rear Admiral William R. Smedley, Academy superintendent, said the Academy was attempting to work out its differences with the NCAA.

Commander Marcy Dupre said the question involved prep students at such institutions as Bullis Preparatory near Annapolis.

About 90 per cent of the Navy's students, he said, were graduates of schools such as Bullis or the Navy's School for Enlisted Men from the Fleet at Bainbridge, Md.

Some prospective athletes at Bullis received aid from the Naval Academy Alumni Association, Dupre said. However, under the Academy's understanding of the rules, he said, an individual can grant aid to a student but it is not clear whether a group, such as the Alumni Association, can do so.

Warriors Hold Second Place In NBA Race

By UNITED PRESS

The Philadelphia Warriors, who are biding their time until Tom Gola returns from the Army, are nevertheless holding down second place in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association.

The Warriors knocked off New York, 113-101, in Thursday night's only scheduled game to give them a 3-2 season's record and a half-game edge over the third-place Knicks. Neil Johnston enjoyed his best night of the season and popped in 34 points for the winners.

Philadelphia took an early 15-6 lead which the Knicks could never overcome. The Warriors led 58-49 at the half and commanded a seven-point margin at the start of the final quarter.

Woody Sauldsberry celebrated his first starting role since coming from the Harlem Globetrotters with an 18-point surge for the Warriors. George Dempsey, who also sparkled on defense, contributed 19 points to the win.

Six teams will be in action tonight as the Knicks travel to Syracuse. Philadelphia meets Minneapolis at Hershey and Cincinnati entertains Boston.

Dodger, Giant Officials Meet On 'Problems'

NEW YORK (UP) — Representatives of the Giants, Dodgers, Pacific Coast League, American Association and Texas League will meet again here next Tuesday in another effort to solve the realignment problems caused by the shift of the two major league clubs to California.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick presided Thursday at a four-hour secret meeting of all concerned in the franchise shifts, and then in a statement to newsmen said that "no conclusions were reached and no definite action taken."

Frick's statement did not mention the cash indemnities to be paid by the Dodgers and Giants to the Pacific Coast League. It had been believed that this was perhaps the major problem, for it was reported the major leaguers had offered only $50,000 each, a sum which PCL President Leslie O'Connor said was "humiliating." Some PCL owners mentioned million-dollar indemnities, and hinted civil court action.

The presence of George Trautman, president of the minor leagues, President Ed Doherty of the American Association and President Dick Butler of the Texas League indicated that the conferees realize that realignment of the PCL almost certainly will involve cities now in other leagues.

Ken Stickel's Score Tops BV K of C Loop

St. Sebastian moved further ahead in the Belle Vernon Knights of Columbus League action last night as Ken Stickel led the winners with a 165 and a 493, in a victory over St. James.

Mike Semancik was tops for St. James with a 184, 413.

St. Johns topped St. Joseph as Bello Zanardelli led the winners with a 146, 366 and Rudy Halgas showed a 152-393 for the St. Joseph entry.

Standings — St. Sebastian 20-10, St. John 17-13, St. James 14-17 and St. Joseph 8-22.

JAMES J. BRADDOCK

The depression and a fading fight career sent Jim Braddock back to the New Jersey docks in 1933 to feed his hungry family. Only a year later, in a comeback he launched to get an occasional extra payday, he became boxing's "Cinderella man" by upsetting 8-1 favorite Max Baer for the heavyweight championship of the world. In 1937, in as gallant a fight as a fighter ever made, he lost the crown by an eight-round knockout to young Joe Louis.

Whatever happened to Jimmy Braddock? Today, at 51, he owns a ship's chandler store dealing in surplus supplies and personally runs the thriving business at North Bergen, N.J.

Pressure Mounts For WPIAL Top Contending Teams

By UNITED PRESS

The four remaining contenders for the WPIAL Class AA football title see action today and tonight as pressure mounts in the homestretch struggle.

A featured game pitted contender Wilkinsburg against undefeated but thrice-tied Penn High in an afternoon contest at Graham Field.

A powerful Wilkinsburg offense, which has carried the team to eight victories—six in their division—and no defeats, was expected to prove the dominating aspect of the traditional rivalry.

Eight - game winner Clairton travels to Connellsville in another top game. Clairton, with five AA wins, has been defeated by Connellsville the past two seasons.

Other AA games: contender New Kensington at Latrobe and potential champion Uniontown hosting Brownsville.

In Class A games, defending champion Braddock visits North Braddock to meet Scott High and Beaver High travels to Rochester.

Class B games find contender Apollo hosting contender Oakmont and Sewickley Twp. hosting eliminated Shannock Valley.

Pitt 'Shot Full of Holes'—Mike

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Coach Johnny Michelosen, figuring West Virginia will be "sky high" for Saturday's game with his Panthers in Pitt Stadium, shook a weary head today and exclaimed: "We're just shot full of holes."

Then he rattled off a long list of names . . . "Charley Brueckman, Joe Scisly, Dick Haley, Dick Bowen, Jim McCusker, Ed Michaels, John Guzik—why they're all hurt."

Gloomy John said he wasn't making excuses, but merely facing the facts. He practically admitted he doesn't know where his next halfback is coming from.

"Brueckman at center, Scisly at right half, and Michaels at guard definitely won't play," he said. "Tackle McCusker probably is out and we can't expect too much from the others even if they get in the game.

Told of a mixup in pre-game odds—some favoring Pitt and some favoring West Virginia—the room filled with laughter (all Michelosen's) when it was brought out that Mountaineer Coach Art Lewis said the odds should slant toward Pitt.

"I can't see how anyone would rate us the favorite," the Panther boss explained. "This is the big game for West Virginia. They would rather beat us than whip any other team. It would make their season a success.

"The Mountaineers are big, tough and experienced. And they remember that close (14-13) defeat last year. They're probably burning for revenge," he said.

Already saddled with what will be his worst season since taking over at Pitt in 1955, Michelosen hopes to avert one other pitfall Saturday. As a head coach for seven years with the professional Pittsburgh Steelers and now with Pitt, his teams never have lost four successive games.

"It may be wishful thinking, but I hope the three-game losing streak we have right now won't be lengthened," he concluded.

four after Saturday," he said. "But don't bet on it."

Pitt's overall record is 3-4 and Michelosen said the reason it isn't any better was "the inability of our offense to progress because of injuries."

"For instance, Saturday we'll have to start a third stringer at left halfback, move a fullback to right half and use a kid who has been out six weeks for heavy duty at left half," he explained.

He referred to John Flara, Curt Plowman and Andy Sepsi in that order.

"If a couple of those boys surprise us, we may make a good showing. But you just can't count on things like that. If you do, you usually wind up being disappointed," he concluded.

Slightly-Battered Lions Leave for Milwaukee

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) —A slightly battered Penn State football team left for Milwaukee by plane today for Saturday's encounter with the winless Marquette Hilltoppers.

Coach Rip Engle, who termed the game a "puzzler," said quarterback Al Jacks, guard Willard Smith and halfback Bruce Gilmore were left behind because of injuries. Thirty-four players and coaches were in the traveling squad.

"This game is a puzzler," Engle said before he left. "Nobody likes to meet an all-losing team because the opponent has everything to gain and nothing to lose. I just hope we're not surprised out there."

Saturday's game marks the first meeting between the two teams. Penn State has a 4-2 record and needs one more win to assure its 20th straight winning season. Marquette has a 0-7 record.

The Lions concentrated on pass defense and offense during Thursday's practice session. The pass has been Penn State's chief weapon this season.

In other games Saturday involving Western Pennsylvania teams, Carnegie Tech hosts traditional rival Franklin & Marshall.

Coach Eddie Baker's Tartans tied Geneva last weekend, 7-7, and were expected to go "all-out" Saturday to tame F & M.

Other games: Grove City at Bethany; Juniata at Penn Military; Otterbein at Washington & Jefferson; Waynesburg and West Virginia Tech at Uniontown, Pa.

State teachers college games: District of Columbia Teachers at Shippensburg; West Liberty at California; Lycoming at Lock Haven; Geneva at Indiana State; Slippery Rock at Westminster.

Clark was allotted 160 hours over the winter months for this project which will be arranged for students from the 4th to 9th grades. Further details will be announced.

Rogers Takes Office

WASHINGTON (UP — William P. Rogers will be sworn in today as the Eisenhower administration's new attorney general.

President Eisenhower, other cabinet members, the Rogers family and outgoing Attorney General Herbert Brownell were to be on hand for the swearing-in ceremonies at the White House. Rogers, who at 44 becomes the youngest member of the cabinet, will take the oath of office from Chief Justice Earl Warren of the Supreme Court.

The President planned to devote a large part of his day to the Justice Department. After witnessing Rogers' swearing in, he was slated to make a few "impromptu" remarks at the FBI Academy's graduation exercises.

The Chief Executive later planned to attend a lunch at the Justice Department marking Brownell's departure He also will get a chance to hear first-hand reports on some of the problems facing the department from some of its top officials.

Brownell will return to private law practice with Lord, Day, and Lord of New York.

Certainly the handsomest man in the cabinet, Rogers was not expected to pursue markedly different civil rights views than his predecessor. Brownell was one of the chief architects of the administration's civil rights programs.

An intimate friend of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Rogers was one of Thomas E. Dewey's original "gangbusters" during Dewey's days as district attorney of New York.

Rogers is a native of Norfolk, N.Y. A graduate of Colgate University, he received his law degree from Cornell University.

Pennsy to Lay Off Some 4,000 More Employes

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The Pennsylvania Railroad will lay off some 4,000 more employes than it originally expected to drop in its earlier announced labor cutback

A railroad official said Thursday that no figures could be given but attributed the increased layoffs to a "sharp decline" in business.

The spokesman said carloadings dropped more than 15 per cent in the three week period ending Nov. 2 while September earnings were three-million dollars, or one-million dollars less than for the same period of 1956.

Earnings for the first nine months of this year totaled $19 6 million, a 37 per cent drop for the same period of last year. Another indication of reduced earnings, he said, was that the board of directors declined to declare the usual last quarter dividend to stockholders at the Oct. 23 meeting.

Man Who 'Saw' Spacemen Gets Mental Exam

KEARNEY, Neb. (UP)—A grain buyer who threw Kearney into an uproar when he claimed to have talked with spacemen was confined today to Hastings State Hospital for mental treatment.

Reinhold O. Schmidt, 48, of Bakersfield, Calif, was committed Thursday night after a hearing by the Buffalo County Board of Mental Health.

The action was taken on recommendation of two examining psychiatrists who advised that Schmidt was "in immediate need of psychiatric treatment."

Schmidt, an ex-convict who once served a term for embezzlement, was ordered confined to the hospital for "an indefinite period for observation, diagnosis and treatment."

Authorities said they had received information from his family that Schmidt was suffering from seeming "instabilities," and demands on him from unidentified persons and "crackpots"

Schmidt stirred considerable excitement and touched off a major investigation Tuesday when he raced into Kearney to tell of seeing a space ship parked on a creek bottom southwest of the city.

He said the occupants of the ship four men and two women, were friendly enough and invited him to have a look around inside the cigar-shaped craft. The spacemen and women spoke German and English, he said.

Steam generated by lava heat has been used to create electric power at Larderello, in northern Italy.

More Science Needed in Schools, Leader Says

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader today urged school officials, parents and teachers to give "every possible consideration" to increase the emphasis in schools on the study of science and mathematics.

The governor said the state Public Instruction Department has been working for more than a year on a special program to stimulate science and mathematics interest among public school and college students, and to improve the teaching of those subjects.

He said the department was ready to give "every possible assistance" to local school districts.

The governor said the department was suggesting methods to reduce the resistance of qualified students to science courses, and said that unless the resistance attitude was changed the state would make slow progress in guiding children into scientific and technical careers.

On Fayette Board

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov George M. Leader has appointed Clarence A. Nichols, Ronco, to the Fayette County Board of Assistance to replace the Rev. William E. McClellan, Lemont Furnace, who resigned.

Ask for Explanation On Price, Wage Spiral

WASHINGTON (UP) — Labor and management chiefs got an invitation today to explain to the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee Nov. 25 why automobile prices and auto workers' wages keep going up.

Subcommittee Chairman Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said the invitations were sent to President Walter Reuther of the AFL-CIO United Auto Workers and the presidents of the "Big Three" automobile companies.

They are Harlow H. Curtice of General Motors Corp., Henry Ford II of the Ford Motor Co., and L. L. Colbert, of Chrysler Corp.

Kefauver said the subcommittee hopes the hearing will develop a "better understanding of the problems involved in a formula for holding the wage and price line in the automobile industry."

He said the higher price tags being attached to 1958 automobiles will have an "inflationary impact" on the economy. Auto price increases thus far announced, he said, are "considerably in excess" of amounts that can be directly attributed to higher costs for steel.

He said presidents of leading steel companies indicated in previous hearings that the increased cost of steel in an automobile ranged from less than $2 to about $8 or $10 per car.

efauver noted that Reuther had proposed some time ago that if auto makers would reduce prices $100 on their 1958 models, his union would consider that in formulating its 1958 wage demands.

The proposal was rejected.

In his letter of invitation, Kefauver said the subcommittee unanimously decided that "although Reuther's offer...was rather vague and indefinite," the four men should be brought together in hope of producing a better understanding of the issues involved in a firm hold-the-line wage and price formula."

Leaks in Capitol Dome Are Damaging

HARRISBURG (UP) — Leaks reported in the masonry dome of Pennsylvania's capitol have damaged murals in the rotunda of the main building.

The damage was discovered Wednesday by Jesse Yarnell, chief capital guide while escorting a delegation of Chilean industrialists through the building.

Repairs to the dome were completed 12 years ago under a $155,000 contract. The four murals, by Edwin Austin Abbey, cost $70,000 when put up 50 years ago. A group of allegorical figures, symbolic of the state's gas and oil industry, was badly streaked and buckled.

PHHHTNIK—The flame of love that lit this photo of Ingrid Bergman and Roberto Rossellini apparently guttered out as they signed an "amicable separation" in Rome.

Ingrid Has Enough

ROME (UP)—Friends of Ingrid Bergman said today she was through with marriage forever and would head for an independent middle age like that of Greta Garbo, her Swedish forerunner.

For Roberto Rossellini the future was not so simple. He has been reported involved with Sonali Das Gupta, the wife of an Indian movie executive, but he lives in a land of no divorce.

Speculation was that the couple would seek a quick divorce in Mexico, ending the marriage-by-proxy in Juarez, Mexico, on May 24, 1950, which legalized their torrid romance.

The legal separation the couple obtained in 90 minutes before a Rome magistrate Thursday was to all intents and purposes the end of the marriage. Italy does not grant divorces but in some instances recognizes them.

Rossellini divorced his first wife, Marcella de Marchis, in Austria and it was recognized by the Turin Court of Appeals on Jan. 14, 1950, after a legal battle.

It was announced in Hollywood that Ingrid would return to the U.S. movie capital in February for her first American picture in seven years. Miss Bergman will make "The Inn of Eight Happinesses" for 20th Century Fox.

She will go to London Monday to start a film with Cary Grant.

Ingrid got the children, seven-year-old Robertino and five-year-old twins Isotta and Isabella, but agreed that Rossellini could see them any time he wanted. She also agreed to educate them in Europe.

A high Vatican source said meanwhile the Bergman-Rossellini legal separation was the logical end of "a match not blessed by God."

The Roman Catholic Church never recognized the marriage as valid because they had obtained divorces.

Strategic Command's New Boss Confident He Has Punch to Win

OMAHA, Neb. (UP) — The commander of America's Strategic Air Command is quietly confident his bomber force has the punch to destroy Russia's will to fight, Soviet rockets notwithstanding.

Gen. Thomas Power, recent successor to Gen. Curtis Lemay as chief of the nation's long range jet striking force, made his view known in an exclusive interview.

Gen. Thomas S. Power

Power, a genial-but-tough-airman, said he viewed the job of SAC as being "to convince potential aggressors that war would not be worth the cost."

"You would have to ask the Russians to find out how successful we have been," he said, "but we think SAC has played a major role in preventing war.

Can Destroy Enemy

But should a war start, he added, the forces under his command are capable of destroying the enemy's long range air force, war making potential and will to fight. As of now, the counter attack would be handled by manned aircraft.

"When missiles are developed," he said, "they will be just another weapon in our system—to complement and supplement, rather than supplant, our bomber force.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the democracies can excell in any field providing we put the required emphasis on it."

Power directs SAC global operations from a second-floor office at Offutt Air Force Base on the banks of the Missouri River. He is responsible for a force with 40 bases, strung from Guam to North Africa, representing an investment of $10.8 billion.

Helped Atomic Attacks

Power, 52, had experience with nuclear weapons before his appointments in August as head of SAC. He was operations staff officer during the atomic bomb attacks on Hiroshima and Nagasaki and, after the war, he was assistant of the Bikini atoll bomb tests.

Power is a considerably different type from the rugged, cigar-chewing Lemay, a man of stern face and brusque manner. Power has a lean face, receding grey hair and an ingratiating personality. But members of his staff said he, like Lemay, received absolute efficiency from his outfit.

Power admits he has a heavy responsibility.

"You can never get away from a job like this, so you try to operate in a posture that won't wear you out," he said. "It's not oppressive or a burden when you recognize its importance."

Air Force Drive On for Women

The U.S. Air Force is now accepting women over 18 years of age who are single and high school graduates, according to an announcement today by Sgt. Arthur Dubinsky, Air Force recruiter.

Sergeant Dubinsky said many specialized courses of training are open to the women. Further details may be secured by visiting the Air Force station in the Monessen Post Office every Monday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Sputnik Painting Is First

By DAVID KUCHARSKY

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio (UP) — The distinction of having created the first artistic impression associated with the Russian earth satellites may go to a comely, silver-haired mother for an oil painting never intended as such.

Sybiel Berkman, artist wife of a Steubenville attorney, readily admits that the painting was completed before Sputnik I hit the headlines.

"Originally, it was my interpretation of the sparkling of rhinestones," she said. "I was going to call it 'Iridescence.'"

Sputnik Appears

Then the first Sputnik came on the space scene and she began to get comments on the resemblance. The painter, too, became convinced of the similarity and she finally named it "Sputnik Anticipated."

A graduate of Carnegie Tech's College of Fine Arts, Mrs. Berkman has been gaining artistic recognition independent of her Sputnik achievement.

The Associated American Artists Gallery in New York featured her works exclusively in a two-week exhibit which ended just a few days ago. On display were 16 of her oils, 8 water colors, 8 block prints, and a work of sculpture called "Creation."

Mother Then Artist

Until her three sons went away to school, Mrs. Berkman was a mother first and an artist second. Her oldest son, Myles, 21, is now a senior at Harvard. Mrs. Berkman's 18-year-old twins, Stephen and Monroe, are studying at Deerfield Academy.

That leaves just her and her attorney husband, Jack, a native of London, who also is president of television station WSTV, Inc.

Paintings Are Real

Mrs. Berkman disagrees with some critics' insistence that hers are abstract paintings, at least to some extent.

"They are real to me," she said, "even though I interpret my subjects as they look to me."

This principle is carried through even in portraits made by the Pennsylvania-born artist.

"I paint people as I see them," Mrs. Berkman said, motioning to two huge portraits which hang in her studio overlooking the Ohio River into the West Virginia Panhandle. "I never flatter them."

She finds the Steubenville area a fertile field in artistic subject material—starting with the front yard of the luxurious 16-room Berkman dwelling in the city's picturesque Sunset Terrace section.

Workshop Of Progress

"'Workshop of Progress' is the slogan of Steubenville," she said. "I have used that theme in a series of prints. I do one a year."

The prints come from linoleum blocks which she cuts out like wooden engravings. She is working on the seventh of the "Workshop of Progress" series, which depicts scenes around Steubenville.

Which of her works does Mrs. Berkman consider her best?

She prefers "Green Thumb," a portrait of a friend working in a garden.

The public favorites in the New York show seemed to be her "Gems of New York" and "Jewels of New Jersey." Both depict patterns of airport lights.

Mrs. Berkman is a native of Donora, Pa., the daughter of a haberdasher.

"Me and Musial," she says jokingly, referring to all-time baseball great Stan Musial, who also hails from Donora.

Protestant Churches Urged to Help Physically Handicapped

By LOUIS CASSLES

WASHINGTON (UP) — Jesus Christ in his earthly ministry displayed a special concern for handicapped people — the blind, deaf, crippled and mentally disturbed.

Protestant churches throughout America are now being urged to follow their Lord's example in this regard.

There are several million people in this country who suffer from mental or physical handicaps which make it difficult or impossible for them to participate in regular church programs. A comparatively few churches already provide special worship services and religious education classes for them.

But Protestant leaders have long been aware that most local churches are neglecting the spiritual needs of the handicapped.

The first important step toward remedying this situation was taken last month. Representatives of major denominations met at Green Lake, Wis., under the auspices of the National Council of Churches, and agreed to work together "to arouse churches to their responsibility" to provide suitable Christian education programs for all types of handicapped persons.

Recommended Program

The conferees recommended a long-range, cooperative program of training special teachers, preparing special Sunday school curriculum materials, and advising local churches and pastors on specific ways in which they can minister more effectively to the handicapped. They asked that a new unit be set up within the Christian Education Division of the National Council to oversee the effort.

The Rev. W. Randolph Thornton, administration director of the Christian Education Division, told the United Press that it is now up to local churches and to denominational headquarters to decide how swiftly these recommendations are carried out.

The big problem, as usual, is money.

Meanwhile, Thornton said, there is plenty that local churches can do on their own to begin serving neglected groups.

They can pool their resources on a community basis, as churches in Evanston, Ill., are doing to provide Christian education classes for the mentally retarded; as churches in Pittsburgh and several Connecticut towns have done for the blind; and as churches in Syracuse, N.Y., have done for youths in a detention school.

Specific Suggestions

Here are some other specific suggestions for local churches:

—Remember that handicapped persons want to be useful; make it possible for them to do volunteer jobs such as telephoning, book reviewing, stuffing envelopes.

—Eliminate steps, slippery floors and heavy doors that make it difficult for crippled persons to get into a church building.

—Provide pastoral counseling for the families of handicapped persons to help them understand and accept their limitations.

"With a few thoughtful adjustments," Thornton said, "it is often possible for the blind, deaf or crippled to participate in regular classes," he said. "Deaf persons who can read lips, for example, ask only that the teacher stand in good light.

"Handicapped persons do not want to be set aside in isolated groups if it can be avoided. What they principally need is an unfailing supply of love, acceptance and understanding.

New French Party Formed; Is 14th

PARIS (UP)— A newly-formed ultra right-wing political party said today its avowed intention is to destroy the present regime in France and guillotine "traitors" if it comes to power. The new party —the 14th in France — is the Revolutionary Patriot Party founded by Jean-Baptiste Biaggi, a turbulent right-winger. Formation of the party means the emergence of an extremist right-wing group which is the direct heir to the various neo-Fascist leagues which plagued political life toward the end of the Third Republic — before the last war broke out.

ARE VITAMINS MEDICINE?

Door-to-door salesmen are selling "vitamin preparations" these days and you may think these are therapeutic doses. They may or may not be. Point is, that you can't know whether they are or not, and the salesman probably isn't qualified to know whether you ever need them. If you do need vitamins in the therapeutic quantities, only your physician can tell you what you need and how much, and only your registered pharmacist should dispense them. Where your health is concerned, always rely on competent professionals.

County Bus Fare Boosted

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission today studied a proposal by the Greensburg City Lines, Inc., to eliminate a 12½ cent token fare for rides in the Greensburg, Youngwood, New Stanton and Foxtown areas, effective Dec. 2.

In a new schedule filed with the PUC Wednesday, the firm proposed establishment of its current 15-cent cash fare as the base rate, and the increase of its two-zone trips from 18 to 20 cents, and three-zone fares from 25 to 30 cents.

The firm said the changes would yield approximately $4,800 additional revenue annually, needed to meet higher operating costs.

Industrial Activity In State Unchanged

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP) —Industrial activity in Pennsylvania was unchanged from August to September but was one per cent higher than a year ago, the Bureau of Business Research at Pennsylvania State University reported today.

The consumers' price index in September reached a new high, although retail food costs were about one per cent below the record high in August. Retail food costs still were considerably above a year ago.

VISIT FARM LABORATORY — These farm experts recently toured the new field research laboratory of Pennsylvania State University located on a 140 acre tract near Ligonier. The "lab" will study grassland farm problems in this area of the state. Lab Superintendent Lewis D. Wissinger explained research progress to Clyde Ribson, Washington County; Clyde Houck, Indiana County; C. T. Douthitt, Beaver County; Lawrence Harteis Jr., Cambria County and John W. Gaut, Westmoreland County.

State Agricultural Research Laboratory Report Is Filed

An old tract of farmland located near Ligonier is the site of the state's newest agricultural research laboratory.

Situated off of Route 381, the 140 acre farm is operated by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station. It has been turned into a field research laboratory to study grassland farming problems in the 11 southwestern counties of Pennsylvania.

This week a group of farmer-advisors, scientists, industry representatives and county agricultural agents visited the "lab" to study first-hand the results of summer-long research.

One of the most interesting projects the past summer was the use of steel furnace slag instead of lime to correct soil acidity. Slag is calcium silicate, a by-product of steel blast furnaces. Finely ground, it is applied to the soil just like lime is applied.

"Results last summer showed no difference in crop yields between the use of lime or slag," reported Howard B. Sprague, head of the Department of Agronomy at Penn State. "If successful, slag can be purchased in Southwestern Pennsylvania for about one-half the cost of lime," he added.

Opened Last Spring

The new research station was opened last spring. Work during the summer consisted mostly of getting the land into tillable condition. Brush and weeds were removed and the fields were planted to various hays and grasses.

Over 200 different plots have been planted and duplicated many times for various legumes, small grains, and winter grasses.

Plans for the future were described by Dr. Sprague and Lewis D. Wissinger, field lab superintendent. Tests for several seasons will stress grass and hay crops raised with no lime, partial lime, and full use of lime. The experiments using slag in place of lime will be continued. New studies will stress different levels of fertility.

One pole-type hay barn is being constructed, and another building is under construction for a combined machine shed and farm shop. There will also be a separate building for a combined office and laboratory.

Building space is being reserved for a greenhouse and superintendent's home. Later research may include vegetables since potential markets for fresh vegetables exist in the area.

Attends Tour

Superintendent Wissinger reported that the research farm produced 55 to 60 bushels of oats per acre in 1957. Again there was no difference in productivity between the use of slag and lime. About 70 tons of hay were also made. Wissinger is assisted by Rush Ulery, Jr. and Merle Ankney.

Attending the tour from the farmer advisory committee were C.T. Douthitt of RD 2, Darlington; John W. Gaut of RD 1, Scottdale; Lawrence Harteis, Jr. of RD 1, Ebensburg; Clyde Houck of RD 1, Clymer; and Clyde Robison of RD 1, Coal Center.

Representing industrial sponsors of buildings and equipment were Robert H. McClintic of Ligonier, also a member of the executive committee, and Lester Ray of Rolling Rock Farms, Ligonier. Howard H. Nuernberger of New Kensington represented the Aluminum Company of America.

Blames Old Paper For Suspicions

BATON ROUGE La. (UP)— A suspect in the murder of a New Orleans church secretary today blamed an old newspaper for casting suspicion on him.

The paper was found in the car of Joseph J. Leutik, 37, and told of the sadistic murder of Miss Maud Lind on Oct. 24 in New Orleans. Leutik was arrested and questioned and he is still in jail.

Leutik, a parole violator from California, denied any connection with the killing.

He said police would not suspect him but for a copy of a New Orleans newspaper dated Oct. 26. The paper carried the story of how Miss Lind was slashed and suffocated shortly after leaving a church meeting with her minister, the Rev. Martin W. H. Holls. The minister was slashed and pistol whipped, but is recovering.

Leutik said he bought the paper to read the jobs wanted section, not to read about a murder.

But police, pointing to an arsenal found in his car at the time of his Wednesday arrest, said there was more than the newspaper to give rise to suspicion.

His car contained two pistols, a tool chest, 1,000 rounds of ammunition and three knives. One of the knives had human blood smeared on it, police said. Leutik said the smear was fish blood.

Black Tornadoes Hit Texas and Louisiana

ALEXANDRIA, La. (UP)— Several ominous black tornadoes churned through two states Thursday night and killed at least six persons.

The tornado funnels, accompanied by driving rains, spun through central Louisiana and southeast Texas, leaving a death toll that was expected to rise as soon as search parties started sifting through the sodden rubble early today.

Hardest hit appeared to be Alexandria, where at least three persons were killed, and Groves, Tex., four miles from Port Arthur, two persons were killed there. Another died at Orange, Tex., 16 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

At Alexandria, Rapides Parish Deputy Sheriff James Feffer said the death toll "won't be known until search crews start in at daylight searching for more bodies." Feffer said he expects the count to rise.

The tornadoes struck long past their normal season. They approached under cover of torrential rain and left hundreds injured. Damage was expected to mount into the millions.

At Groves, 11 persons were reported critically injured and 42 hospitalized with minor injuries. A nurse at a Port Arthur hospital, to which most of the Groves casualties were rushed, said at least a hundred persons were treated for minor injuries and released.

In Alexandria, 14 persons were in two smaller hospitals while attendants at the largest hospital in the city of 30,000 were too busy treating injured to make even a remote estimate of tornado casualties there.

Other tornadoes struck and caused damage at Nome, Port Avres, and China, all near Port Arthur in southeast Texas, and at Torras in southwest Louisiana. The twisters also struck Iota, Bossier Parish, Leesville and Grand Prairie in central Louisiana.

At Orange about 100 homes were damaged or destroyed and at Groves, about 50 homes were smashed and many others damaged.

Nine warships in the Navy's "mothball fleet" anchored in a channel of the Sabine River at Orange were set free by the twister and started drifting away. Navy crews were after them.

Rapides County Sheriff Grady Kelley said as many as 150 to 175 homes in Alexandria may be destroyed.

The seal of the United States was designed by a young Philadelphia student named Will Barton.

Fire of 1845 Reproduced

The great fire of 1845, which destroyed much of early Pittsburgh, is recreated in blazing beauty in Buhl Planetarium's new sky show, "The Fiery Skies of '45," which opened Wednesday.

Special panoramas reproduce the streets of early Pittsburgh, as spectators watch the fire from a safely fireproofed seat in the Theater of the Stars.

One of the significant developments of the fire was the discovery of a fragment of glass in the ruins which was the basis for work on the spectroscope. Later, at Allegheny Observatory, the spectroscope revealed the nature of Saturn's rings.

In addition to a realistic recreation of the fire, Saturn, other planets, outstanding stars and constellations, and two historic comets sweep through the Planetarium's man-made heavens. The Comet of 1843, one of the most spectacular in the annals of astronomy, and Donati's come in 1858, inspired such great local interest in things celestial as to contribute to the founding of Pittsburgh's astronomical observatory.

And as a climax to the sky show, a vision of the new Pittsburgh pays an advance tribute to the Bicentennial celebration. "The Fiery Skies of '45" is a feature of the third annual historama, an exhibition of student projects opening Nov. 11, and may be seen at 2:15 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. daily, with extra shows at 11 a.m. Saturday and 4:15 p.m. Sunday.

Most of the copper mined in the United States comes from Arizona, Utah, New Mexico, Nevada and Michigan.

Stronger Ties

PARIS (UP) — A transatlantic telephone cable will be laid between France and Canada in 1959 and put into service by the end of that year, the French government announced today. An agreement signed last July included West Germany as a signatory. The cable is designed to improve telephone service—currently by radio—between the two European countries and North America.

FIGHT AHEAD—Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn leaves the White House after discussing the elections with Sherman Adams, presidential assistant. President Eisenhower was quoted as saying that the GOP and its candidates "have a fight on their hands if victory is to be achieved in the 1958 elections." (International)

Polish Jet Fighter Defects to West

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UP)— A Polish jet fighter pilot who flew to Sweden in a MIG 15 Thursday was shot at by four pursing Polish fighters over the Danish Island of Bornholm, informed sources said today. The sources said they learned this from the unidentified pilot when they talked to him at Varnberg. He said he avoided being hit by diving into clouds. The pilot was said to have defected from his Communist homeland for political reasons and asked for asylum.

Civil Rights Board Named by President

WASHINGTON (UP)—Congressmen generally today praised President Eisenhower's selection of members for his bipartisan Commission on Civil Rights. But some Southerners complained the group would lean heavily toward integration.

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), a member of the judiciary committee which will consider the President's choices, said they were "men of talent and ability who ought to be able to submit a helpful report on civil rights problems."

But Rep. Ralph Scott (D-N.C.) said the group appeared to be "heavily weighted for integration."

Eisenhower late Thursday named three Southerners and one Negro to the six-member commission. His choices were in line with his aim to establish a commission to represent all shades of opinion on the civil rights issue.

Picked to head the group as chairman was 75-year-old former Supreme Court Justice Stanley F. Reed. Reed, a Kentuckian, was a member of the high court when it handed down its unanimous decision in 1954 to outlaw segregation in the public schools.

Others named were former Virginia Gov. John S. Battle, a strong foe of integration; J. Ernest Wilkins, Negro assistant secretary of labor; the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburg, president of the University of Notre Dame; Robert G. Storey, dean of the Law School at Southern Methodist University; and John A. Hannah, former assistant secretary of defense and now on the faculty of Michigan State University.

The six are subject Senate confirmation when Congress reconvenes in January. They will be given recess appointments so they can begin work immediately.

The commission was created by the Civil Rights Bill passed in the last session of Congress. It is authorized to investigate alleged violations of minority voting rights, to study other civil rights abuses, and to make recommendations to Congress and the White House for improving racial relations.

New Turnpike Contract Signed

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission has approved a new contract with its consulting engineer, Michael Baker Jr., Inc., Rochester, Pa. for engineering services on the now completed turnpike system at $10,000 a month.

The agreement provides the firm will maintain at least five engineers at the toll agency headquarters at the Highspire Interchange to handle problems along the entire length of the road.

Commission Vice Chairman Joseph J. Lawler said if the agency had not accepted the new contract at its Wednesday meeting, the cost would have been $25,000 monthly with the official opening today of the final 15½ mile link to Scranton on the Northeastern Extension.

The name of Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, means "new flower," and the city is famous for its many varieties of flowers.

BOLDEST ADVANCE IN 50 YEARS!

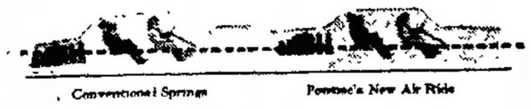
THE GOLDEN JUBILEE CAR.

It's a revolution on wheels—boldly planned from the very beginning as a Golden Anniversary showpiece for Pontiac and General Motors.

This one you really must see—here is a car unlike any you have ever known! This Golden Jubilee Pontiac is actually an all-new breed of cars—in four brilliant series and 16 sleek models covering virtually every price bracket.

In all of them you'll find engineering advances so daringly different yet so basically sound that they will trigger the next big change in automobile design. You'll find a few of these ideas illustrated here, but even they can't begin to tell the full story.

Why not be among the first to discover the newest. When you meet this bold new Pontiac, you're in for a driving thrill that is impossible to duplicate in cars of conventional design. So make it a point to see your Pontiac dealer soon and prove to yourself that no car in history ever left yesterday so far behind!

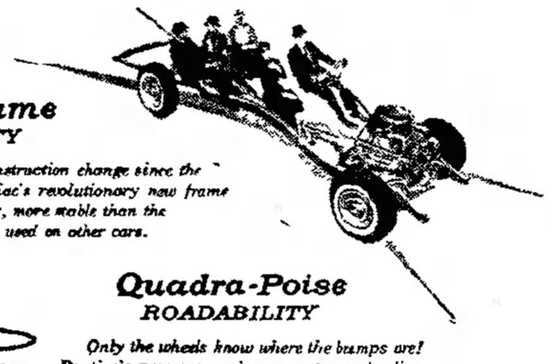


Conventional Springs — Pontiac's New Air Ride

Ever-Level Air Ride*

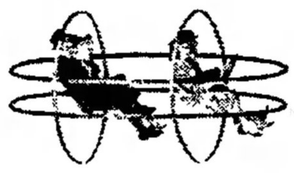
The most perfect suspension system ever designed—and Pontiac's revolutionary Aero-Frame is specifically designed for it! Air cushions on all four wheels literally float you over the bumps . . . keep the car perfectly level regardless of load or road!

*An extra cost option.



Aero-Frame
STABILITY

Here is the biggest basic construction change since the early days of motoring. Pontiac's revolutionary new frame design is lighter, stronger, more stable than the conventional box type used on other cars.



Quadra-Poise
ROADABILITY

Only the wheels know where the bumps are! Pontiac's new suspension geometry ends dive, sway and bounce to bring you the smoothest ride, easiest handling you've ever known!

Circles-of-Steel
SAFETY

Pontiac's completely new body construction surrounds you with girder steel protection—above, below, fore and aft. Now you can drive with wonderful new peace of mind!

Tempest 395
PERFORMANCE

Try Pontiac's new jeweled-action responses! Scores of exclusive engineering innovations make Pontiac's hefty power plant a miracle of smoothness . . . and you can choose from four horsepower ratings including Tri-Power Carburetion and Fuel Injection*.*

In loving memory of our dear son Jack Cadwallader, who passed away one year ago today, November 8, 1956.

We miss you, Jack, and always will.
Your memory is our keepsake,
With that we shall never part,
God has you in His keeping,
We have you in our hearts
Sadly missed by Mom and Dad

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear mother Mrs. Mary Kachur Bailey, who died eight years ago today, November 8 1949
We miss thee from our home, dear mother,
We miss thee from thy place.
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face.
We miss thy kind and earnest care
Our home is dark without thee. . .
We miss thee everywhere.
Sadly missed by her children, Mrs. Eleanor Matush and Family, Mrs. Pauline Mudrick and Family and Jackie Bailey.

In loving memory of our dear father, Jack Cadwallader, who died one year ago today, November 8, 1956.
Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember he who was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear,
Sadly missed by sons, Gerald, Dennis and Kenneth

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Joseph Homa, who died 13 years ago today, November 8, 1944.
The rolling stream of life rolls on,
And still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile,
Of the one who once sat there.
It is lonesome here without you,
And sad the weary way;
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away.
Sadly missed by mother and dad, Mr. and Mrs. George Homa, Sr., Brother and Sister.

In loving memory of our dear brother and uncle, Jack Cadwallader, who died one year ago today, November 8, 1956.
We live today with memories
Of days when you were here.
We miss you still and always will
Throughout each day and year.
At night when all is silent
And sleep forsakes our eyes
Our thoughts are in that lonely grave
Where our dear loved one lies.
Sadly missed by brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cadwallader and Family.

McSorley Trial
Plans Revealed

HARRISBURG (UP)—Selection of a jury will begin next Tuesday in Dauphin County Court for the trial of suspended Turnpike Commission Chairman G. Franklin McSorley, Pittsburgh on a charge of misconduct in office.

McSorley, suspended from his $15,000-a-year post last January by Gov. George M. Leader, was charged with supplying a chauffeur at commission expense for former Commission Chairman Thomas J. Evans, after Evans left office.

He was indicted along with 46 others last January as the result of a special grand jury investigation of virtually all phases of turnpike operations.

For Attack on High Blood Pressure

By DELOS SMITH

NEW YORK (UP) — A head-on scientific attack on all the medical problems of high blood pressure has been proposed by a noted blood pressure expert, on the grounds that if those problems were solved, scores of lives would be saved every year.

Dr. I. McD. G. Stewart spoke especially of blood pressures which are high but not so high they have caused any damage (yet) or produced any sense of ill in the persons who contain them. The lives of many of these persons could be prolonged, he said.

He made the following statements as facts: 1) death or disability are produced by the damage excessive blood pressure produces in arteries and veins, and not by excessive blood pressure itself; 2) a reduction of blood pressure "can delay or arrest" this damage; 3) "a relatively slight" reduction might be enough in most people.

Blocks Nerve Centers

Right now medical science throughout the world is employing an effective blood - pressure reducing weapon in the form of chemicals which "blocks nerve centers of the sympathetic nervous system. But this weapon is employed only in persons whose blood pressure is extremely excessive or has been excessive for so long, that life-shortening damage has been done.

In these severely ill persons, many of whom have reached the "malignant" high blood pressure stage and so are at death's door, these chemical weapons have produced wonders in lowering pressures, keeping them down, and so prolonging life. Dr. Stewart said they had been proven "potent, practical, and reasonably predictable."

Then why not use them in all persons with only moderately elevated blood pressure—since life insurance statistics show that "any sustained rise of arterial pressure occurring short of old age, particularly in men, presents a grave long - term threat." There are two main reasons why not, he said. One is a lack of knowledge of how the agents work in healthy bodies against blood pressure that is high but not very high.

New Control Studies

This is knowledge which medical science needs, and which it can obtain only in massive "controlled" studies everywhere of the effects of the chemical agents in more-or-less normal persons. But at this point Dr. Stewart encountered his major difficulty, and that big difficulty is people generally.

Mention blood pressure (if you are a doctor) to the average person and the mere mention of the subject increases his blood pressure. If you're going to have a "controlled" study of the chemical weapons in persons whose blood pressures are not elevated by very much, you'll have to have their cooperation because you'd have to measure their pressures repeatedly for a few weeks. And so you'd have to tell these persons their blood pressures.

Dr. Stewart said he was against telling patients their blood pressures as of now, but if the blood pressure problems were solved, "The whole climate of professional and private opinion" might change and then it would be possible to tell the patient about his high blood pressure "without inevitably releasing a flood of anxiety symptoms."

A British specialist, he made his proposal in a London lecture. That lecture now is being widely discussed among American medical scientists.

Your Health—

Medical Help Needed For State of Anxiety

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Don't be so anxious.

This is good advice but in many cases, it is pretty difficult to follow. In our present mode of living, anxiety is widespread.

Some of the trouble — central anxiety — begins early in life. It may influence an individual's entire personality, but generally the victim is completely unaware of it.

The second type, peripheral anxiety, probably can be traced to fairly recent situations, such as financial problems, job or domestic troubles.

Anxiety, as a state of apprehension, is a mechanism of self-preservation. However, when anxiety becomes excessive, it hampers mental function and is likely to interrupt the body's normal physiologic function as well.

If you are troubled by anxiety, the first person to consult is your physician.

Many persons believe anxiety is an ailment generally held in horror by the public at large. For this reason, they might hesitate admitting, even to their doctor, that they are tense or worried. Hence, the physician probably will ask whether the patient has difficulty relaxing.

He'll inquire about sleep habits since persons suffering anxiety usually have quite a bit of trouble getting to sleep.

The physician will ask whether symptoms seriously limit activities. Persons with deep anxiety, you see, generally seek the easy way out. They prefer being alone and avoid crowds. They also try to stay clear of confusion or disagreement, since stress of almost any kind will tire them out very quickly.

Next, the doctor must determine whether symptoms are related in any way to environment or interpersonal relationships.

Don't get the idea that a doctor will hustle such a person right off to a psychiatrist. Intensive psychiatric study is not necessarily indicated for all anxiety patients.

Casting Confusion Is Explained by Mitchum

(Vernon Scott is on vacation. Robert Mitchum, movie tough guy, discusses casting his first independent film.)

By ROBERT MITCHUM

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Now I understand why Hollywood confuses some issues and most people.

Let's swing a few examples. When we were filming "The Whippoorwill" for DRM Productions, my independent (?) company, we had to find someone who could play my younger brother. Did we hire my younger brother, Jack, who is a fine actor? Of course not. We hired my elder son, Jim, to play the part because he looks more like my brother than my brother does.

No Call For Lady

In the same picture the leading lady—make that "leading woman" because the role doesn't call for a lady—is a night club singer. That gives you a fair idea of the kind of night club it is.

Any place that has more than five tables and two waiters always calls a girl who sings "chanteuse." That's not only French for singer but it also means "watch the cover tab, dad, it's a gasser."

Anyway, the usual drift is to find a dramatic actress who thinks Brahms is plural for Brahm and that Dixieland is where they make out with paper cups. Then you hire a singer to do the songs while your square actress mouths the words for the camera.

So we went out and hired a lady named Keely Smith. Her only qualifications for the job are that she is the nightclub singer who draws people to her corner in Las Vegas like a payoff slot machine and whose platters keep the Capitol record people sore - fingered and weary counting the money.

The theory is that audiences do not like to see the hero of the movie come to a bad end — or even a good end. They want him to go on and on, circling the theaters like Sputnik. We decided to do me in—a really gory and miserable death — because, well, frankly, I deserved it.

I should feel as revolutionary as a South American patriot, but all I feel is good all over. When "The Whippoorwill" was completed and turned over to United Artists for release—I didn't have ulcer one!

U. S. Is not Far Behind, UP Expert Claims

(Why was the United States bent on getting a satellite into space? Are we badly behind on military missiles? The following analysis is written by a UP correspondent who has been covering the American aviation and military scene for more than 10 years.)

By CHARLES CORDDRY

WASHINGTON (UP) — We lag on satellites by default. We have financed our own program with peanuts.

We obviously underestimated or failed to understand Russian progress and did not appreciate the psychological-political effects a Sputnik would have.

It would be hard to prove from that, however, that we lag in military rockets—that is, ballistic missiles and other weapons—although we are in a neck and neck race in which either side can forge ahead temporarily. Experts do not think the country can be lapped while spending the kind of money this country is putting into missiles.

Satellites

Though the U.S. program was announced with great fanfare it has been a low voltage project. It has not been allowed to interfere with the missile, particularly ballistic missile, program. It is not a military project as Russia's must be. For example, the Vanguard rocket thrust is 27,000 pounds. The Air Force has just abandoned the Navaho intercontinental missile which had a booster with 225,000 pounds of thrust and would have had 450,000 pounds in production version.

Big rocket companies deeply in the ballistic missile program are not in the Vanguard program, generally speaking. The prime contractor, Martin, has its first team on the Titan intercontinental ballistic missile and gave General Electric, not in the ballistic missile program, the contract for Vanguard's first stage.

If the United States now decides to enter the space race more seriously, it has right now rockets perfectly capable of launching either a Sputnik I or II or shooting to the moon. But vehicles would have to be re-tailored and considerable time would have to be taken because the American effort has not been in that direction.

The government has been saying we were not in a race and we were not surprised by the Russians' developments. The question many are asking is why we were not in the race. If we were not surprised, we must have had intelligence data coming in and being supplied to the government's top levels. But it must have got little evaluation and must have been sent to the White House without firm recommendations for American counter-action.

Nor can Congress claim it has had much enthusiasm for the satellite program. The program is estimated to cost 110 million dollars. Speaking generally on missiles Tuesday, Chairman George Mahon (D-Tex.) of the House military appropriations subcommittee said "the sky's the limit...we must get out in front..." Last July Mahon was saying the Vanguard project "has ballooned heavenward to a pretty high point. It's disappointing that these costs are becoming so great."

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.), who now wants America to get going, was surprised last July to learn that the Vanguard launching apparatus and satellite were one-shot affairs. "Once it is released you cannot use it anymore?" he asked congressional witnesses.

Sputnik shows that the Russians have the rocket power required for an intercontinental ballistic missile. While the government does not know, apparently, it is assuming that Russia also can guide and control an ICBM and knows how to get one back through the atmosphere without evaporating.

All this does not show that Russia has leaped ahead of the United States in the field of military missiles. The object of virtually all American weapons effort is to be able to deliver nuclear warheads on targets and, more broadly, thereby to be able to prevent war by keeping Russia aware she would be destroyed if she started one. Military men do not think our position has changed.

The purpose of a military rocket is to carry a warhead the distance we want it to go and do it accurately. That kind of rocket power we have now. The same kind of power, used in newly-tailored vehicles can launch Sputniks if the government decides to do so.

It seems obvious that the Russians deliberately set out to beat the U.S. satellite into the sky for political and propaganda purposes.

It seems just as obvious that our side, obsessed with the dry scientific nature of the gadget, lacked the imagination to sense the loss of face that would be involved if Russia got there first.

The scientists were all fired up, but the hard-headed people who handle the budget thought of the satellite as just a scientific toy with no practical value.

The fact that the Russians put up Sputnik I early in October proves they were out to inflict a defeat on us. Early in the discussions preceding the International Geophysical Year, we told the Russians and other IGY people we hoped to be ready to attempt a satellite launching in October, 1957.

The Russians obviously made it their business to get one up in that month before we did. They obviously used existing military hardware to launch both Sputniks. It also has been suggested that, instead of painfully and carefully designing and building a genuine satellite laboratory, like our 20-inch spheeres, they whomped their Sputniks together out of what they had.

Doctor Warns of Second Wave of Asian Flu

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UP) — A Harvard medical school professor urged the public today not to be fooled by a leveling off or decline in Asian flu because a second and more severe wave may strike this winter.

"Don't let up on vaccination," warned Dr. David D. Rutstein, professor of preventive medicine. "And be sure to get at least two shots."

Those who are allergic to egg which is present in all flu vaccine, should not be vaccinated, since the reaction might be fatal, he said.

Rutstein explained that the second wave of the world-wide epidemic, known to physicians as a pandemic, would be more dangerous than the first. The Asian flu virus is a hitherto unfamiliar flu strain to which the population has no immunity.
